THE LIST (5 stories)

■■ Meta's smart glasses are making creeps invisible — and Instagram's not stopping it

The Angle: Meta's AI glasses let anyone film strangers without them knowing, and a wave of guys are turning that into harassment content for clicks. Instagram promised a crackdown a month ago — and Business Insider says the videos are still sitting there, easy to find by the dozen.

- Instagram publicly vowed to remove harassing videos filmed with Meta AI glasses — then weeks later, dozens were still up, per Business Insider
- The format: a guy wearing camera glasses approaches a woman on the street while secretly recording — one asks a woman in a tank top, "Are you a secret code?"
- The woman's reaction on camera says it all — "What do you mean, 'a secret code?'" — seemingly with no idea she's being filmed
- The core problem is the tech itself: glasses, not a phone, means there's no visible camera and no chance to say no

The Phone-In Trigger

- Would you notice if the person talking to you was wearing camera glasses — and what would you do if you found out you were the video?

■ Disney's Villains Land is real — and Maleficent's getting a coaster

The Angle: Disney just dropped actual ride details on the villains-themed land fans have been speculating about for two years, and it's the rare theme park expansion built entirely around the bad guys. Theme park news travels way past Orlando — everybody has an opinion on Disney, and everybody has a favorite villain.

- Disney revealed the new ride details at D23, its big fan convention
- Villains Land is heading to Magic Kingdom at Disney World
- Two headliners announced: a Maleficent roller coaster and a 'Snow White' Magic Mirror dark ride
- The land was first announced two years ago — this is the first real look at what's actually going in it

The Phone-In Trigger

- Which Disney villain deserves their own ride more than anybody — and what does it look like?

■ Microsoft is killing an AI feature after just one year

The Angle: Every company on earth is shoving AI into everything right now — and here's Microsoft quietly pulling the plug on an AI tool inside Excel, the most-used business software on the planet. It's a rare admission that the AI gold rush doesn't always work, and it's blowing up on tech forums.

- Microsoft is retiring the COPILOT() function in Excel
- The feature lasted just one year before getting the axe
- Copilot is Microsoft's flagship AI brand — this is the AI push hitting a wall inside its own biggest product
- Story is trending on Reddit's r/technology, where the AI-in-everything backlash lives

ENTERTAINMENT (4 stories)

■ A washed-up movie star wanders Tbilisi all night

The Angle: It's a critic-darling foreign film review that doubles as a very relatable story — an aging star whose best years are behind him, drifting through a city at night. Variety's praise puts it on the radar for anyone who chases the next arthouse gem.

- The film is "Supporting Role," from Georgian writer-director Ana Urushadze — her second feature
- Dato Bakhtadze stars as Niaz, a "lumbering Georgian movie star whose glory days are behind him"
- Variety calls it a "nocturnal odyssey through the spectral streets of Tbilisi" conjured with "mesmerizing effect"
- The review says it plays like an "old-school Jim Jarmusch joint" — "all existential wandering" and weirdness

The Debate Starter

■ Ziwe asks Law Roach if he's dressing The Hunger Games' District 1

The Angle: Ziwe built a career on asking celebrities the question everyone's too polite to ask, and this time she aimed it at fashion's biggest kingmaker — pointing out that Met Gala glamour and America's billionaire class are wearing the same clothes. It's the rare red-carpet interview that turns into a class-commentary moment, which is exactly why it's ricocheting around social media.

- Ziwe ran through a list of names Law Roach has dressed for The Met Gala before dropping the question
- The kicker: "Do you feel like you're dressing District 1 from 'The Hunger Games'?"
- She followed with "What's your favorite part of helping some of America's biggest oligarchs look and feel their best?"
- Roach is one of the most powerful stylists in the business — the self-described "image architect" behind A-list red-carpet looks

The Debate Starter

■ There's a secret X-Files movie hiding on Hulu right now

The Angle: Fans scrolling Hulu are finding a version of the second X-Files movie they've never seen before, and nobody can agree on which cut is the real one. It's the kind of streaming mystery that turns a 2008 flop into this week's rewatch project.

- A director's cut of X-Files: I Want to Believe has fans asking if there's a brand-new movie on Hulu
- The confusion comes from multiple versions of the second X-Files film floating around
- The original 'I Want to Believe' was the franchise's second big-screen outing after the show's TV run
- The story is a straight-up explainer: which cut is which, and why anyone bothered making another one

The Phone-In Trigger

■ Disney just dropped its next decade of park plans

The Angle: D23 in Anaheim is where Disney tells millions of park-goers what's coming next — and this year it's a Tomorrowland overhaul and the return of a cult-favorite character. If you've ever paid Disney prices, you now know what you're paying for in the future.

- Thomas Mazloum, Disney's Experiences chief, broke down the news with The Hollywood Reporter
- The big reveals came at D23 in Anaheim — Disney's own mega fan event
- Neil Patrick Harris hosted the showcase at the Honda Center Saturday night
- On the list: a Tomorrowland refresh and a comeback for Figment, the purple dragon Epcot diehards never stopped asking about

■ Ask for a raise, get punished — if you're not rich

The Angle: Everybody's told to negotiate their salary, but a new study says that advice backfires on working-class people — they get more professional blowback for asking than higher-class coworkers do. It's a fresh take on why the pay gap keeps widening over a whole career, and it hits anybody who's ever sweated asking for more money.

- New research finds lower-class employees face greater professional backlash for negotiating their salaries
- Researchers call it a "double bind" — you lose by not asking, and you get penalized when you do
- The study says the effect compounds economic disadvantage over a person's entire career
- The findings are drawing big discussion on Reddit's r/science

■ Study says AI is now a better scammer than humans

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): The finding that AI chatbots out-scam human scammers is a concrete, frightening study result that's already been independently posted to two large subs (14 and 18) — parallel organic pickup is the earliest momentum signal there is.
The Angle: Everybody has a story about a fake text from 'the bank' or a grandkid who needs bail money — now researchers say the bots pulling those scams are outperforming the humans who used to do it. It's the rare tech story where the stakes are your own phone, your own parents, your own bank account.

- A new study found AI chatbots are better at scamming people than human scammers
- The finding is that the machines aren't just faster — they're more effective at actually convincing the victim
- Story is blowing up on Reddit's r/technology, where the tech-savvy crowd is the one sounding the alarm
