THE LIST (6 stories)

■ Boy, 9, burns 70% of his body in terrifying, viral ‘fire challenge’

The Angle: This is the nightmare scenario parents warn about with viral social media dares — a child nearly killed trying to recreate an online trend, and it's sparking fresh outrage over platforms letting this content spread to kids.

- A 9-year-old boy suffered burns to 70% of his body after attempting the viral 'fire challenge'
- New Orleans' police superintendent publicly addressed the incident
- Quote: "It's very dangerous. It is not fun, and it is not funny."

The Parent Panic Point

- Call in: do you check what 'challenges' your kids are watching online, or is this the wake-up call?

■ Meet ‘Ted Lasso’ Season 4’s Youngest Stars, Orion And North, The Real-Life Brothers Playing Lizzie’s Sons

The Angle: Ted Lasso Season 4 is one of the most anticipated streaming returns in years, and the casting twist that Lizzie's on-screen sons are real-life siblings is exactly the kind of behind-the-scenes nugget that gets fans buzzing before premiere day.

- Orion and North Ginsburg Chan are real-life brothers cast to play Lizzie's sons in Ted Lasso Season 4.
- They sat down for their first-ever interview, talking to Decider about landing the roles.
- Both brothers opened up about their shared love of acting, not just one chasing the family hobby.

The Watercooler Moment

- Real siblings playing on-screen siblings - ask listeners if that casting trick actually makes shows feel more believable.

■ Maine model wins "Angels Among Us," named Victoria's Secret newest angel - WMTW

The Angle: A 21-year-old originally from Cameroon who's been grinding on the Maine modeling circuit just got crowned the newest Victoria's Secret Angel - a massive, life-changing contract that's basically the fashion world's Cinderella story.

- Solange Omon, 21, is the winner
- She's originally from Cameroon but has been modeling locally in Maine
- She won the "Angels Among Us" competition
- The win comes with a new contract as a Victoria's Secret Angel

■ One-quarter of the world’s data centers are located in areas where water demand exceeds supply for at least one month each year. Unlike energy, which can come from far away, water for these facilities comes from nearby rivers, lakes, and aquifers whose levels vary seasonally or annually.

The Angle: AI and cloud computing are exploding, and this story's the hidden cost nobody talks about — a quarter of the world's data centers are sitting in places that literally run short on water every year, because unlike electricity, you can't just pipe water in from far away.

- One in four data centers worldwide sits in a region where water demand outstrips supply for at least one month a year
- Data centers need water on-site for cooling, pulled from nearby rivers, lakes, and aquifers
- Unlike power, which can be shipped in from anywhere on the grid, water supply is strictly local and seasonal
- Levels in those local water sources swing year to year, meaning the risk isn't constant — it spikes

The Debate Starter

The Angle: Stewart just committed to anchoring 'The Daily Show' all the way through the 2028 presidential race, meaning the guy who defined political comedy for a generation will be front and center for another full election cycle - that's a big deal for late-night and for how America laughs its way through politics.

- Jon Stewart is staying on at The Daily Show through the 2028 election.
- The commitment keeps him in the host chair for a full presidential cycle, not just a short-term extension.

The Debate Starter

■ Lieutenant-governor will skip Quebec cabinet's swearing-in at incoming premier's request

The Angle: Quebec's incoming PQ government is refusing to let the King's own representative swear in the new cabinet - a symbolic shot at the monarchy that's never happened before in Canadian politics.

- Lt.-Gov. Manon Jeannotte will sit out her own province's cabinet swearing-in - a political first.
- The letter went out Monday, straight from the incoming Parti Québécois leader.
- His stated reason: he won't let a representative of the British Crown preside over the ceremony.

The Debate Starter

- Is snubbing the Queen's (well, King's) rep a bold political statement or just symbolic theater?

■ Rubio speaks to Zelenskyy, denies U.S. is deliberately hindering Ukraine's defences

The Angle: A top U.S. official had to personally call Ukraine's president to deny America is deliberately withholding intel help — that's a big, awkward admission there's real friction behind the scenes of a war the U.S. is supposedly fully backing.

- Secretary of State Marco Rubio said he had an "extensive conversation" with President Volodymyr Zelenskyy
- The call came after disputes over U.S. intelligence sharing with Ukraine
- Rubio directly denied any "deliberate political directive to harm Ukraine"

■ 7 players to make worlds debut as Canadian women's hockey team looks to youth

The Angle: Canada's women's hockey team is handing seven newcomers their world stage debut just months after that gutting Olympic final loss to the U.S. — a youth movement storyline that's easy for casual fans to latch onto.

- 7 players will make their world championship debut for Canada
- The tournament is set for Denmark next month
- It's Canada's first major tournament since falling to the U.S. in the Olympic final in February
- Canada is leaning into youth as it looks to retool the roster

■ Alberta referendum: Voters want province to remain in Canada, CBC News projects

The Angle: This is the separatist talk finally hitting the ballot box - Albertans had their say on whether to break away, and CBC's projecting the province is staying put. It's a huge temperature check on just how deep that western alienation really runs.

- CBC News is projecting the result of the Alberta referendum

- The projection: voters want Alberta to remain in Canada
- Comes after years of louder "Alberta separatism" talk from some corners of the province

The Debate Starter

- Were you surprised Alberta separatism talk ever got loud enough to need a referendum - or did you always know it'd end like this?

The Angle: A repeat offender with over a hundred break-and-enters on his sheet getting time served instead of more jail is the kind of sentencing story that instantly splits a room — restorative justice vs. public safety, and everyone's got an opinion.

- The man's criminal record includes 101 break-ins.
- The sentence handed down was time served — no additional custody.
- The case is out of Toronto, and the man is identified as Indigenous, which factors into how Canadian courts weigh sentencing.

The Debate Starter

- Does a sentence like this protect the public, or does it prove the system's catch-and-release when it comes to repeat property crime?

■ Prime Minister of The Netherlands, Rob Jetten, and Argentinian field hockey player, Nicolas Keenan, are expecting their first child.

The Angle: A sitting head of state expecting his first child with a same-sex partner is a genuine first for a lot of listeners, and it's the kind of good-news crossover story (politics meets sports meets pop culture) that's easy to smile about.

- Rob Jetten, Prime Minister of the Netherlands, is expecting his first child.
- The other dad is Nicolas Keenan, a field hockey player from Argentina.
- The news is making the rounds on celebrity/pop-culture corners of the internet, not just political wires.

The Angle: A professional conduct body just yanked a teacher's certification over a relationship with a student that started in middle school and kept going into high school - the kind of story that raises hard questions about oversight and why nobody caught it sooner.

- The teacher is based in Winnipeg
- The relationship began when the student was in middle school and continued into high school
- Investigators cited hundreds of messages sent to the student
- A professional body called it a 'serious breach' and stripped him of his teaching certificate

■ Canadian who stole a Las Vegas flamingo after drinking '30 to 40' beers convicted of animal cruelty

The Angle: An Ontario man got convicted of animal cruelty for swiping Peachy the flamingo from the Flamingo Las Vegas after a reported 30-40 beers - it's the kind of absurd-but-real crime story that writes its own punchline.

- The flamingo's name is Peachy, and she was taken from her habitat at the Flamingo Las Vegas Hotel and Casino.
- The accused, Mitchell Fairbarn, is from Ontario, Canada.
- He reportedly admitted to drinking '30 to 40' beers before the incident last March.
- A Las Vegas court convicted him on Monday of animal cruelty charges, with prosecutors calling it a drunken, malicious act.

■ A new study found that HSV-1, the virus that causes cold sores, can reprogram the brain's immune cells, potentially linking viral infection to chronic inflammation and increased vulnerability to Alzheimer's disease.

The Angle: Nearly everyone's carrying the cold sore virus without knowing it, and now scientists say it could be quietly rewiring brain immune cells and raising Alzheimer's risk - the kind of 'wait, what?' health story that makes people want to go Google their own cold sore history.

- The culprit is HSV-1 - the common virus behind cold sores, which most adults carry
- Researchers found it can reprogram the brain's immune cells, not just sit dormant

- That reprogramming is tied to chronic inflammation in the brain
- The study links this process to increased vulnerability to Alzheimer's disease

The Watercooler Worry

- You've probably had a cold sore and never thought twice about it - does knowing it might mess with your brain change that?

■ The OG Angels Were the Hottest Part of the Victoria's Secret Fashion Show Runway - Cosmopolitan

The Angle: Victoria's Secret brought back its iconic 90s/2000s Angels for the 2026 show, and fans are saying the nostalgia act stole the runway from the current lineup - a fun generational showdown for anyone who grew up on this show.

- Adriana Lima, Alessandra Ambrosio, and Heidi Klum were singled out as the standout moments of the 2026 runway show
- The piece argues the "OG Angels" outshined the current roster of models
- Victoria's Secret leaned on nostalgia, bringing back faces that defined the brand's wings-and-glamour era

The Nostalgia Debate

- Do the OG Angels still have it, or are we just romanticizing the 2000s?

■■ Christina Applegate reveals MS misdiagnosis in shocking health update: 'I lost everything' https://t.co/RU1pwQCZZi https://t.co/ABFbax7ioj

The Angle: Applegate has been candid about her multiple sclerosis battle for years, so a reveal that the diagnosis itself may have been wrong hits hard — it's a gut-punch update fans weren't expecting and taps into real fear around getting misdiagnosed.

- Christina Applegate is revealing she was misdiagnosed as part of her ongoing health journey.
- Her own words on the toll it took: 'I lost everything.'
- She's framing it as a 'shocking health update' in her own announcement.

CLOSER: THE KICKER/GOODBYES

■ Angelina Jolie's foundation has protected 150,720 acres of Cambodian forest for 20 years, where elephants and pangolins still roam; its rangers removed more than 4.8 miles of illegal snares in 2025, helping keep the forest safe for wildlife.

The Angle: This is the good-news palate cleanser — a celebrity conservation project that's actually been grinding away for two decades with real results, not just a photo-op. Elephants and pangolins still roaming free is the kind of detail that makes a story land.

- Angelina Jolie's foundation has protected 150,720 acres of forest in Cambodia for 20 years.

- The land is still home to elephants and pangolins.
- Rangers pulled over 4.8 miles of illegal snares out of the forest in 2025 alone.

The Feel-Good Finish

- Twenty years, nearly 5 miles of snares pulled in one year — that's not a photo-op, that's a job.

The Angle: This is pure feel-good: one conservation bet in the 90s has snowballed into a thriving ecosystem, proof that sometimes nature just needs a nudge to fix itself.

- 300 bison were reintroduced to Oklahoma's tallgrass prairie back in 1993
- The herd has exploded to roughly 2,700 bison today
- They roam a massive 39,000-acre preserve
- Their grazing has brought more wildflowers, new wildlife ponds, and less dry grass fueling wildfires

The Angle: She spent years as Hollywood's face of multiple sclerosis — now her doctor says she never had it, and she says that's not the relief it sounds like. It's a wild, relatable twist on health journeys everyone thinks they understand.

- Her doctor walked in and said: "Congratulations, you don't have MS."
- Applegate says she hasn't improved — "If anything, I've gotten worse in some ways."
- She calls herself "back at square one," with no answer for what's actually wrong
- She says there's a "pretty damn high number of misdiagnoses with MS" and doctors now think it's something else entirely

The Angle: During a brutal heat wave, regular people's home batteries did what power plants couldn't — and got paid cash for it. It's a feel-good story with a real 'wait, I could do that too?' hook.

- Home batteries sent a record 745 MW to California's grid in a single evening during the heat wave
- That's enough juice to power San Francisco and San Jose combined at peak demand
- Over 85,000 Tesla Powerwall owners pitched in, supplying more than 600 MW on their own
- Participating homeowners got paid by the grid for helping keep the lights on

■ Battery storage is now cheaper than gas peaker plants in all 43 global markets studied, while solar is the cheapest new power source in 43 of 48 markets, strengthening the case for clean energy as gas turbine shortages and fuel volatility drive up fossil backup costs.

The Angle: This isn't a green-energy pep talk, it's a money story - battery storage is now flat-out cheaper than gas backup plants everywhere researchers checked, which means clean energy is starting to win on price, not just principle.

- Battery storage undercuts gas peaker plants on cost in all 43 global markets studied.
- Solar is the cheapest new power source in 43 of 48 markets checked.
- Gas turbine shortages and volatile fuel prices are driving fossil backup costs up, making the gap even bigger.

■ Trapped 4-Year-Old Boy Rescued from Smoldering Wreckage of House Fire by Neighbor Searching with His Bare Hands.

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar):
Child-rescue-by-bare-handed-neighbor stories are classic shareable hero content with a vivid, visceral image that travels fast on social feeds.

The Angle: This is the kind of pure, no-asterisks hero story that stops people mid-scroll — real bodycam footage of a stranger risking his own life to pull a little kid out of a fire, and it's going viral for all the right reasons.

- The fire happened in Edwards, Hinds County, Mississippi
- Neighbor Kennard Hodge searched the smoldering wreckage with his bare hands
- Police bodycam caught him shouting "Got him, got him. I got him!"
- The boy, just 4 years old, was pulled out to applause from onlookers, per WAPT

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Space debris literally crashing into a cornfield is a vivid, visual, almost absurdist image that tends to travel well beyond the tech niche.
The Angle: Space debris falling out of the sky and landing on an actual American farm is the kind of wild, visual story that spreads instantly online - it taps into real questions about who's responsible when space junk rains down on someone's property.

- A Chinese rocket reportedly deorbited over Minnesota
- Debris reportedly came down in a farmer's cornfield
- Raises the recurring question of liability and safety when falling rocket parts land on private land

■ MapQuest Includes Flock Camera Locations Now

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Flock Safety cameras are a hot-button surveillance/privacy flashpoint right now, and mapping their locations gives the story a concrete, actionable hook people want to share.
The Angle: MapQuest is reportedly flagging the locations of Flock Safety cameras — the AI license-plate readers police and neighborhoods use nationwide to track vehicles — turning a everyday map app into a surveillance radar and reigniting the privacy-vs-policing debate.

- Flock Safety cameras are AI-powered license-plate readers used by police departments and neighborhood groups across the U.S. to track vehicle movement.
- MapQuest is reportedly now marking these camera locations directly on its maps for drivers.
- The move taps into a growing national debate over mass license-plate surveillance and who gets to track whom.

The Angle: An alleged spy inside one of the world's most powerful AI companies is wild enough on its own - but now the U.S. is worried Saudi Arabia might help him skip the country before he faces charges.

- The FBI says the accused kept a folder literally labeled "Saudi Gov Docs"
- He's a former OpenAI engineer now facing spying-related charges
- U.S. officials reportedly fear the Saudi government could help him flee before trial
