THE LIST (5 stories)

■ A secret new Elizabeth Holmes documentary stuns Telluride

The Angle: Elizabeth Holmes is one of the most talked-about fraudsters in modern business history, and a surprise, under-wraps documentary dropping at a major film festival is exactly the kind of "wait, what?" pop-culture moment that gets people searching and talking.

- The documentary was kept secret ahead of its debut — no title, no announcement, just a surprise drop.
- It premiered at the Telluride Film Festival, one of the industry's top launchpads for awards-season buzz.
- The subject: Elizabeth Holmes, the disgraced Theranos founder currently serving federal prison time for fraud.
- Early reaction is being described as the film having "stunned" the festival crowd.

The Debate Starter

- Are we still fascinated by Elizabeth Holmes, or are we just tired of true-crime grifters getting the Hollywood treatment?

■ A Plane Almost Crashing Into a Bunch of Cybercabs Is a Reminder That They’re ‘Piling Up’ Unused

The Angle: A near-miss between an aircraft and a cluster of Tesla's driverless Cybercabs is turning into an unplanned PR headache, exposing that the futuristic fleet is reportedly just sitting around unused instead of picking up riders.

- A plane almost crashed into a group of parked Tesla Cybercabs.
- The scare is being framed as proof the robotaxis are 'piling up' unused rather than out working.
- Elon Musk reacted to the near-miss with a one-word review: 'Weird.'

The Debate Starter

- If Musk's big robotaxi bet is just sitting in a lot dodging planes, is the self-driving hype outrunning the reality?

■ Prince William’s Idea of a ‘Fun Evening’ with Kate Middleton Includes a Surprising Reality TV Show - People.com

The Angle: A rare peek behind the palace curtain — turns out the future King just wants to kick back with Kate and watch reality TV like the rest of us, which is exactly the kind of relatable royal gossip that gets clicks.

- Story centers on Prince William's idea of a "fun evening" with Kate Middleton
- The surprising detail: it reportedly involves a reality TV show
- Report comes from People.com

The Guess-The-Show Game

- Before we tell you — what reality show do YOU think the future King of England is secretly obsessed with?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Take the Guesses - 60 seconds, cold open into the story -> Both hosts throw out their guess for which reality show William is into before revealing the answer

■■■ An Assam teacher just won India's National Teachers' Award after turning his students into teachers for their own mothers, many of whom never learned to read or use digital payments. His “Each One Teach One” programme has now spread from one village to six.

The Angle: It's the ultimate role-reversal tearjerker — students becoming the teachers for their own mothers, many of whom never learned to read or use a smartphone to pay for groceries. Feel-good, family-angle story that's spreading fast because it's the kind of thing that makes you want to call your mom.

- A teacher in Assam, India just won the country's National Teachers' Award
- His program is called "Each One Teach One" — students are trained to go home and teach literacy and digital payments to their own mothers
- Many of the moms involved had never learned to read or use basic digital payment apps
- The program started in one village and has now spread to six

■ LG smart TVs caught logging audio with screen off and snooping on local devices

The Angle: This is the kind of creepy-tech story that makes anyone with a smart TV check their settings tonight - a major brand accused of snooping on audio and other devices on your home network hits close to home for basically everyone listening.

- Reports out of r/technology claim LG smart TVs are logging audio even with the screen off
- The TVs are also allegedly scanning and snooping on other devices connected to the same home network
- Raises fresh questions about what smart TV manufacturers collect by default and whether users can actually opt out

■■ A Decade of Hype, 3,000 Roofs, and One Redirect URL: Tesla Kills the Solar Roof

The Angle: Elon Musk promised a roof that would replace shingles and power your house — a decade and reportedly only about 3,000 installs later, Tesla just let the page quietly redirect and walked away. It's a juicy "promise vs. reality" story that plays to anyone skeptical of tech hype cycles.

- The Solar Roof product is reportedly being killed off after roughly a decade on the market
- Only about 3,000 roofs were ever installed, per the reporting
- Tesla didn't announce the end — it just redirected the product's URL, according to the post title
- Story is trending on Reddit's r/technology

■ New prize named for late author Andrew Pyper will recognize horror and thriller writers

The Angle: A widow turns grief into action — Heidi Pyper says her husband, bestselling thriller author Andrew Pyper, never got a shot at Canada's biggest literary prizes just because of his genre, so she's launching a new one to fix that.

- Heidi Pyper, widow of author Andrew Pyper, is behind the new literary prize.
- She says horror and thriller writers are shut out of Canada's top literary prizes because of their genre.
- Andrew Pyper was a bestselling horror/thriller novelist who was never considered for those major awards.
- The prize aims to honor his legacy and give overlooked genre writers real recognition.

- Step 1: The Pitch - 30 seconds, cold open to the bit -> Each host makes their 10-second case for why THEY should be Snoop's official taster.
- Step 2: The Taste Test - Live in-studio -> Bring in a couple tubs of ice cream, hosts blind-rate them like judges, keep score out loud.
- Step 3: The Verdict - Wrap-up, tease phones/social -> Ask listeners to vote who's got the more 'hireable' palate and tease it into the break.
