THE LIST (5 stories)

■■ Harry and Elton John just got handed a $18M legal bill

The Angle: A royal, a rock legend, and a tabloid publisher going toe-to-toe in court is already a soap opera, but the twist ending is what makes hosts talk: the celebrities lost, and now they're on the hook for a massive legal bill.

- Prince Harry and Elton John are among the high-profile claimants ordered to pay up.
- London's High Court ruled the group must make an interim payment of £9.54 million (about $17.89 million CAD).
- The money goes toward covering the legal costs of the Daily Mail's publisher.
- The ruling comes after the claimants lost their privacy lawsuits against the tabloid.

The Debate Starter

- Does this ruling make celebrities think twice before suing the tabloids, or is $18M just pocket change to Harry and Elton?

■ Albertans Are Losing It Over AI Data Centres — Again

The Angle: This is round two of the same minister getting an earful, and it taps into a growing North America-wide backlash against AI data centres eating up power, water, and land in people's backyards.

- Alberta's technology minister faced another angry crowd at the province's second town hall on AI data centres.
- It's a repeat blowup — residents pushed back hard the first time too, and the anger hasn't cooled off.
- The fight fits a bigger continent-wide pattern: communities everywhere are pushing back on AI data centre buildouts over power and resource concerns.

The Debate Starter

- Would you want a massive AI data centre built next door — and who should get a say before it happens?

■ Ariana Grande Goes At Trump's Team — Again

The Angle: A pop superstar publicly clashing with the White House's social media team is exactly the kind of celebrity-meets-politics collision that gets people talking, especially since this is round two of the same fight.

- Ariana Grande is calling out the Trump administration for using her music in a TikTok post — the second time this summer she's done it
- The track in question is her hit "We Can't Be Friends (Wait For Your Love)"
- The post didn't just use her song — it tagged the Grammy-winning singer directly
- This is a repeat offense, meaning the same conflict has now flared up twice in one summer

The Debate Starter

- Should politicians be able to use pop hits in their social posts without asking first — or is this just free promo artists should let go?

■ Linda Cohn Says ESPN's Pat McAfee Love-In Has Gone Too Far

The Angle: A former ESPN anchor publicly torching her old network's biggest new star is instant sports-media drama, and it taps into something a lot of viewers already feel: is Pat McAfee suddenly on every single ESPN show?

- Linda Cohn, a longtime former ESPN SportsCenter anchor, publicly blasted the network's growing embrace of Pat McAfee.
- She described it as a "lovefest" between ESPN and McAfee.
- Her blunt warning to the network: "Welcome to overexposure."

The Debate Starter

- Has Pat McAfee taken over ESPN, or is this just a former anchor settling a score on her way out the door?

■ Mass. Fishermen Reel In An 11-Foot Sea Monster

The Angle: A potential record-breaking catch off Massachusetts is the kind of jaw-dropping, share-it-with-everyone story that cuts across any audience — everybody wants to see the photo.

- Hooked off the coast of Massachusetts on Wednesday
- Measured in at over 11 feet long
- Believed to be the biggest of its kind ever caught on the East Coast

CANADIAN NEWS (3 stories)

■ Stabbing at Edmonton Sikh temple, suspect in custody

The Angle: A violent attack at a place of worship always stops people cold — this hits home for Canada's Sikh community and raises immediate questions about motive and security at religious sites.

- Incident happened Friday morning at the Nanaksar Gurdwara temple in northeast Edmonton
- Two people were injured in the attack
- A man is now in custody
- The World Sikh Organization of Canada confirmed it as a "violent incident"

The Reaction Check

- Attacks at houses of worship always raise the same question: is this personal, or is it targeted — and Edmonton's Sikh community deserves to know which as fast as possible.

■ No booze deal, no trade deal, Canada tells U.S.

The Angle: Canada's own ambassador is reportedly saying the provincial liquor bans have to go before Ottawa can lock in a tariff truce with Washington - so a fight that started over booze on shelves could now decide the bigger trade picture.

- Canada's ambassador to the U.S. said on a video call Thursday that pulling American alcohol back onto Canadian shelves is a mandatory prerequisite for a deal.
- The goal is to avoid new tariffs from the U.S.
- CBC News reports the comments came directly to a council on a call, per sources familiar with the discussion.

The Debate Starter

- Should Canada cave on the liquor-shelf boycott just to keep tariffs off the table, or is that giving up leverage for nothing?

■ Mounties now reviewing a treason call against Alberta's premier

The Angle: First Nations chiefs in Alberta asked the RCMP to investigate the premier and the UCP for treason, and Canada's top Mountie just wrote back confirming it'll actually be reviewed — that's a stunning escalation in a fight most Canadians haven't been tracking closely.

- Canada's top Mountie personally responded to First Nations leaders in Alberta
- The RCMP has confirmed it will review the chiefs' call for a criminal treason investigation
- The target: Alberta's premier and the governing UCP
- Some chiefs are already saying they're feeling optimistic after getting the response

The Debate Starter

The Angle: An Arctic port most Canadians have never thought about could become an $80 billion energy and shipping hub - the kind of price tag that instantly invites 'is this actually happening or a pipe dream' debate.

- Premier Wab Kinew says the Port of Churchill expansion could cost $70 to $80 billion
- The plan includes an offshore LNG terminal built in Hudson Bay
- Churchill is Canada's only deep-water Arctic port with rail access

The Price Tag Reaction

■ The tariff clock is ticking on Canadian businesses

The Angle: A U.S. trade deadline is bearing down, and a obscure century-old tariff law could get dusted off to squeeze Canadian companies - this is the kind of story that hits jobs, prices, and cross-border business directly.

- The threat comes from Section 338 of the 1930 Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act - a rule that's been sitting dormant for decades.
- CBC photographer Evan Mitsui went on the ground to Canadian industries to document who's sweating this deadline.
- No new Canada-U.S. deal means these companies could get hit - and the clock is actively counting down.

The Debate Starter

■ Family drives to D.C. to get a stolen teepee back

The Angle: A Saskatchewan family is heading south to reclaim a teepee cover made by their ancestor, who was reportedly promised payment for it and never got a dime — a story about cultural repatriation that's part road trip, part decades-old injustice.

- Family members from Kawacatoose First Nation in Saskatchewan are traveling to Washington, D.C. to retrieve the item
- The teepee cover was made by an ancestor of the family
- That ancestor was reportedly promised payment for the piece but never received it
- The item ended up in the U.S. and is now being returned to the family

■ Harry Potter's Lavender Brown Says OnlyFans Saved Her

The Angle: A former Harry Potter cast member getting banned from a fan convention over her OnlyFans is exactly the kind of nostalgia-meets-modern-hustle clash that gets listeners talking about money, shame, and Hollywood's paycheck reality.

- Jessie Cave played Lavender Brown in three Harry Potter films.
- She opened an OnlyFans last year specifically to help pay off debt.
- On U.K.'s "This Morning", she called the decision "embarrassing" but said "it has saved me."
- The move got her barred from a Potter fan convention, though she notes Lavender "was a small part 20 years ago."

■ Netflix just dropped a stacked anime slate for anime fans

The Angle: Netflix is flexing quality over quantity with its anime lineup this time, and two fan-favorite titles are headlining the return — good excuse to talk streaming wars and anime's mainstream crossover.

- Cyberpunk: Edgerunners 2 is officially coming to Netflix

- Blue Eye Samurai is getting what the article calls a "glorious return"
- New titles are set to roll out later this year and into early 2027
- Netflix is bucking the usual streamer playbook of dumping tons of anime and hoping something sticks — this lineup is curated for quality

■ Mayor Bass Does a 180 on the $111 Billion Hollywood Mega-Merger

The Angle: A massive $111 billion Paramount–Warner Bros. Discovery merger just got a surprise political nod from L.A.'s own mayor — who was dead set against it months ago. It's a juicy flip-flop story with an election-year twist.

- L.A. Mayor Karen Bass is now backing the proposed Paramount–Warner Bros. Discovery settlement.
- The merger is valued at $111 billion.
- Bass previously said she'd oppose the deal unless jobs were preserved in the transaction.
- Bass is running for reelection this year, adding political weight to the timing of her reversal.

The Flip-Flop Alert

- A mayor who once threatened to block a $111 billion Hollywood merger is suddenly all-in on it right before an election — genuine change of heart or political math?

■ 'Dungeon Crawler Carl' TV Show Just Got a Big New Boss

The Angle: The buzzy LitRPG book series is finally becoming a show, and now it's got serious screenwriting firepower behind it - a nice hook for fans of the novels wondering if Hollywood can actually pull this one off.

- Eric Heisserer, the screenwriter behind 'Arrival,' is joining the show as a showrunner.
- He's teaming up with Chris Yost, who was already attached to run the series.
- The show is adapting the hit literary series 'Dungeon Crawler Carl.'

The Fan-Cast Debate

■ Austrian Film 'Everytime' Sweeps Sarajevo After Cannes Win

The Angle: This is the little indie that keeps winning big — first Cannes, now Sarajevo's top prize, with a jury led by an Oscar-nominated actress calling it unanimous.

- Sandra Wollner's "Everytime" won the Heart of Sarajevo for best narrative feature at the Sarajevo Film Festival.
- The film already won at the Cannes Un Certain Regard section before this latest win.
- The jury, headed by two-time Oscar nominee Emily Watson, made the pick a unanimous choice.
- It's Wollner's third feature film as director.

The Quick Hit

- An Austrian film going Cannes-to-Sarajevo back-to-back is the kind of festival streak that turns a movie into must-see counterprogramming.

■■ Bill Maher Grills Hunter Biden Live On His Show

The Angle: Hunter Biden's gone from tabloid punchline to media tour regular, and Maher calling him out to his face for the podcast circuit he's been running with is exactly the kind of awkward-TV moment people can't look away from.

- Hunter Biden has been making the rounds — Twitter, Substack, and a string of far-right podcasts.
- That list includes Nick Fuentes, Tucker Carlson, and Candace Owens.
- Bill Maher confronted him directly on air, referencing past scandal with the line: "I've seen you with your dick out."
- The bigger question Maher's raising on-air: what is Joe Biden's son actually trying to accomplish with this media blitz?

The Debate Starter

The Angle: Two big comedy names team up for a title-says-it-all spa getaway flick, but the reviews are calling it out as proof this whole genre of dumb-on-purpose comedies might be running out of gas.

- Stars Leslie Mann and Isla Fisher
- It's a 'high-concept' comedy — literally titled "Spa Weekend"
- Variety's critic says the genre leans on being "crass and dumb and obvious" on purpose
- Review argues this style of comedy may be entering its twilight zone

The Debate Starter

- Are these 'the title says it all' comedies (Bride Wars, Grown Ups, etc.) officially played out, or is there still an audience craving dumb fun at the movies?
