■ Brock Purdy comes up short in hilarious bet with George Kittle

The Angle: Two 49ers stars, one dumb rivalry bet gone wrong — Brock Purdy's Iowa State just got embarrassed by George Kittle's Iowa Hawkeyes, and now Purdy's stuck paying up in front of the whole locker room.

- Brock Purdy and George Kittle bet each other every year when Iowa State and Iowa play
- Iowa beat Iowa State 16-13 on Saturday
- Purdy had to face Kittle right after the loss to settle the bet

The Debate Starter

■ We Regret to Inform You Chipotle Is Now Working With Palantir

The Angle: Palantir built its name on defense, intelligence, and ICE contracts — now it's reportedly plugged into Chipotle, and the internet is having a field day with the mental whiplash of "burrito bowl" meeting "surveillance tech giant."

- Chipotle is reportedly now working with Palantir, the data-analytics company best known for military, intelligence, and government contracts.
- The pairing is blowing up on Reddit's r/technology, with users reacting to a fast-casual chain teaming up with a firm more associated with defense and law enforcement work.
- Palantir has been pushing hard into commercial and retail data deals lately, but this one's got people doing a double-take.

The Debate Starter

- Does it creep you out that a company known for military and ICE contracts might now be crunching data on your burrito order?

■ Hackers find encryption keys stored on stolen Flock camera despite company's denials--group extracts more than 27,000 clips, 1.6 million images captured in a span of 21 days from the device

The Angle: Flock Safety cameras are bolted onto street corners in thousands of towns tracking license plates for police, and the company swore the data was locked down tight - so hackers proving otherwise by pulling over a million images off a stolen unit is a real 'wait, WHAT' moment for anyone who's driven past one.

- Hackers say they found encryption keys stored right on a stolen Flock camera - despite the company insisting that couldn't happen.
- The group extracted more than 27,000 video clips.
- Also pulled 1.6 million images off the single device.
- All of that came from just 21 days of footage on one camera.

The Debate Starter

- If a hacker can crack one stolen camera and walk away with 1.6 million photos, how comfortable are you with these things scanning every plate in your neighborhood?

■ Shopify CEO says employees' 'slop grenades' are making more work for everyone else

The Angle: A tech CEO just put a name to something office workers everywhere have felt but couldn't articulate - lazy AI output getting dumped on a coworker's desk to clean up. It's a workplace-culture flashpoint that goes way beyond one company.

- Shopify's CEO publicly called out staff for tossing 'slop grenades' into the workflow.
- His point: low-effort, AI-generated work doesn't save time - it just shifts the cleanup burden onto someone else.
- The phrase 'slop grenades' is catching fire online as the new shorthand for sloppy AI shortcuts at work.

The Debate Starter

- Callers: have you ever gotten handed a coworker's half-baked AI 'slop grenade' - and had to clean up the mess?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Name That Slop Grenade - 60-90 seconds, phone/text-in -> Hosts ask listeners to text in their best - or worst - example of getting handed obviously lazy AI-generated work at their job.
- Step 2: Host Confession - Quick back-and-forth -> Each host admits whether they've ever lobbed a 'slop grenade' of their own - a rushed email, report, or reply they didn't proofread.

CANADIAN NEWS (3 stories)

■■ I drew Canada as a LOTR/Tolkien fantasy map

The Angle: A fan artist turned the entire country into a hand-drawn Tolkien-style fantasy map and it's blowing up on r/Canada — pure nerdy Canadian pride that's perfect for a fun, shareable segment.

- Artist posted a Lord of the Rings-style fantasy map of Canada on r/Canada
- They joked, apologizing in advance "for missing or misspelling any towns"
- You can buy a print on Redbubble of the map, titled "Realm of Canada"
- Artist runs an Instagram, @realmofmaps, full of similar fantasy-style maps

The Show and Tell

- Ask listeners: if our city got the Middle-earth treatment, what fantasy name would it deserve — and would it be Rivendell or Mordor?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Pull up the map - 30 seconds, cold open -> Hosts describe what they're looking at on screen — a hand-drawn fantasy map with Canadian cities relabeled as kingdoms, mountains, and strongholds.
- Step 2: Guess the Middle-earth match - 1-2 minutes -> Hosts each pick a major Canadian city (Toronto, Calgary, Halifax) and riff on what LOTR location it should be — Shire, Mordor, Gondor — and argue it out.
- Step 3: Open the phone lines - Caller bit -> Invite listeners to call in and pitch a fantasy name for their own hometown, funniest pitch gets a shoutout.

■ Carney nods to Trump, says Canada, Europe not 'fair-weather allies' in speech to European Parliament | CBC News

The Angle: PM Mark Carney took a not-so-subtle swipe at Trump-style alliance-hopping in a speech to the European Parliament, framing Canada and Europe as the steady, reliable partners - a live storyline as Canada navigates its own tense trade relationship with Washington.

- Mark Carney delivered the speech directly to the European Parliament
- He said Canada and Europe are not "fair-weather allies"
- The line is widely read as a veiled dig at Donald Trump's unpredictable approach to allies

The Debate Starter

- Is Carney smart to publicly cozy up to Europe while trying to keep the peace with Trump on trade, or is that playing with fire?

The Angle: Canada's PM is set to speak directly to the EU Parliament, and Trump has already called the idea of Canada cozying up to Europe a 'possible hostile act' — that's about as blunt as trade tension talk gets between allies.

- Mark Carney is scheduled to address the EU Parliament directly.
- The move follows reported talk of Canada pursuing some form of 'associate membership' with the EU.
- Donald Trump has publicly floated that such a move could be seen as a 'possible hostile act.'
- It's the latest flashpoint in the ongoing US-Canada trade and diplomacy tension under the new administration.

■ 'You're Not Going To Win Tonight With That Stupid Face': Ke Huy Quan Reveals Cruel Dig From Famous Actor

The Angle: Everyone loves Ke Huy Quan's comeback story, so hearing a brutal, catty insult from an unnamed A-lister is instant gossip fuel — and the mystery of who said it makes it even juicier.

- Ke Huy Quan says a famous actor told him: 'You're not going to win tonight with that stupid face.'
- Quan hasn't publicly named who said it, leaving fans to speculate.
- The line reads like classic old-school Hollywood pettiness aimed at an awards contender.

The Guessing Game

■ Cody Rhodes Reveals Wearable Popcorn Bucket For 'Street Fighter'

The Angle: Wearable movie popcorn buckets keep getting weirder and more viral, and a WWE star fronting one for the new 'Street Fighter' movie is exactly the kind of only-in-2026 merch that gets people talking online.

- Cody Rhodes — the WWE star — revealed the item
- It's a wearable popcorn bucket tied to the new 'Street Fighter' movie
- Fits the trend of movie theaters pushing outlandish, wearable popcorn buckets as collectibles

The Watercooler Take

- Rate the wearable popcorn bucket trend: genius merch or peak movie-theater cash grab?

BREAKOUT WATCH (below the show's usual engagement bar - included on editorial judgment, not metrics; producer's call)

■ Researchers use genetically engineered immune cells to put a child's metastatic cancer into remission

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Same child-cancer-remission story is independently trending on both Reddit and Gizmodo (see #48) simultaneously, a cross-platform convergence signal that usually precedes a breakout.
The Angle: A child's cancer that had already spread went into remission after doctors engineered the kid's own immune cells to hunt it down - the kind of science-fiction-turned-real story that makes for an easy feel-good chat.

- Doctors used genetically engineered immune cells to treat the case
- The cancer was metastatic, meaning it had already spread in the body
- The child's cancer reportedly went into remission following treatment

The Feel-Good Moment

- This is one of those 'science is wild' stories - anyone else feel like we're living in the medical future we were promised?

■■ 3-Year-Old Boy's Cancer Disappears After He Gets Experimental Immunotherapy https://t.co/rTj7WcS6v0

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Duplicate pickup of this exact remission story on Reddit (#4) at the same time suggests organic cross-platform momentum rather than a one-off post.
The Angle: A miracle medical story with instant mass appeal — a toddler's cancer disappearing after a cutting-edge immunotherapy trial is the kind of good-news headline that stops people scrolling and gets shared everywhere.

- The patient is just 3 years old
- He received an experimental immunotherapy treatment
- His cancer disappeared following the treatment, according to the report

The Feel-Good Hook

- Ask listeners: any of you had a family member's health turn around thanks to a clinical trial or experimental treatment?

■ River with 500 crocodiles in it will be used for rowing at Olympics

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Two independent posts on the same subreddit-type ('crocodile river approved for Olympic rowing') signal the absurdist premise is spontaneously resurfacing, and 'hundreds of crocodiles at the Olympics' is exactly the kind of surreal headline that gets screenshotted and shared far outside Reddit.
The Angle: It's the kind of headline that sounds fake but isn't, which is exactly why r/nottheonion exists - a river packed with 500 crocodiles is apparently getting the green light as an Olympic rowing course.

- Report says the proposed rowing venue is home to an estimated 500 crocodiles
- The river would reportedly still be used for Olympic rowing competition
- Story is making rounds via r/nottheonion for being almost too absurd to believe

The Debate Starter

- Would you get in a boat on a river with 500 crocodiles for a gold medal?

■ River crawling with crocodiles is approved as Olympic rowing venue

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): This is the second independent thread on the same wild premise as #5, suggesting the story keeps regenerating engagement each time someone rediscovers it — a classic signal of a sleeper meme about to break wide.
The Angle: It's the kind of headline that stops you mid-scroll - officials signing off on a crocodile-infested river for Olympic competition is peak 'wait, what?' news that practically writes its own jokes.

The Reaction Bit

- What's the one animal that would make YOU refuse to compete, no matter the medal?

■ "What Changed?": Activist Launches Movement To Restore O.J. Simpson's Scrubbed Legacy

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): O.J. Simpson is one of the most recognizable and polarizing names in America, and a 'restore his legacy' movement is a ready-made outrage/curiosity hook that reliably drives outsized comment volume even off modest upvotes.
The Angle: This is a pure 'you can't make this up' r/nottheonion find - an activist reportedly pushing to rehab O.J. Simpson's image is the kind of headline that stops you mid-scroll and demands a reaction.

The Reaction Read

- Just read the headline cold and let the silence - or the laugh - do the work.

■ Students Risk 'Cognitive Surrender' by Relying on AI for Answers

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): 'Cognitive surrender' crystallizes the ongoing AI-in-education anxiety into a sticky, quotable phrase that teachers, parents, and students all have a stake in — the kind of framing that gets repurposed as a talking point well beyond the original post.
The Angle: New warnings say kids leaning on AI for every answer might be losing the ability to think for themselves — a debate that hits parents, teachers, and anyone who's ever let a chatbot do their thinking.

The Debate Starter

- Ask listeners: when's the last time you asked AI instead of just working it out yourself?
