THE LIST (5 stories)

■ Why my interview with AI actor Tilly Norwood creeped me out - CBS News

The Angle: Tilly Norwood, the AI-generated "actor" that's already got Hollywood buzzing, sat down for a real interview — and reportedly unnerved the journalist by profiling them almost instantly. It's the AI-in-entertainment debate hitting a genuinely creepy new gear.

- CBS News sat down with Tilly Norwood, billed as the world's first "AI actor."
- Within about one minute, the AI correctly pegged the reporter's age and U.S. region.
- The reporter says it isn't clear how Tilly figured that out — and that the exchange "got really weird" from there.
- The interview took place in London.

The Debate Starter

- Would an AI actor guessing your age and hometown in 60 seconds impress you or freak you out?

■ Earth May Be Hoarding a Secret Water Stash 1,800 Miles Beneath Our Feet

The Angle: Scientists think there could be a massive reservoir of water buried 1,800 miles down, left over from the day the planet formed - it's the kind of mind-bending space/science story that makes people stop scrolling and go 'wait, what?'

- The theorized water sits roughly 1,800 miles beneath our feet.
- If it's real, it would date back to Earth's earliest days - basically a time capsule from the planet's formation.
- Researchers are careful to say 'should it exist' - this is still an open question, not confirmed fact.

The Mind-Blown Moment

- Ask listeners: if there's a hidden ocean under our feet that's older than dinosaurs, does that change how you think about the ground you're standing on?

■■ Solar panel costs have plummeted from $6 per watt in 2000 to just 12 cents today

The Angle: This is one of those quiet numbers that explains a huge shift happening around us — solar went from a rich-person luxury to cheaper than almost anything else on the grid, and most people have no idea it happened this fast.

- Solar panel costs have dropped from $6 per watt in 2000 to roughly 12 cents per watt today
- That's about a 98% price collapse in just over two decades
- The price drop helps explain why solar installations (rooftop and utility-scale) have exploded across North America in recent years

The Watercooler Stat

- Would you actually go solar at home now, or does the upfront cost/install hassle still scare you off even at these prices?

■ Bristol has become the first British city to ban fast fashion advertising, while also restricting ads for SUVs, airlines, cruises and fossil fuels on council owned spaces. The new policy aims to improve the city's health, air quality and nature by removing advertising for polluting products.

The Angle: Bristol just told fast fashion, SUVs, airlines, cruises and fossil fuels they're not welcome on city-owned ad space anymore - a real-world test of how far a government can go to police what gets advertised, and it's got people asking if this crosses the pond next.

- Bristol becomes the first British city to ban fast fashion advertising on council-owned property
- The ad ban also covers SUVs, airlines, cruises, and fossil fuels
- City says the goal is improving health, air quality, and nature by cutting ads for polluting products
- This applies specifically to council-owned advertising spaces, not the whole city

The Debate Starter

- Should cities get to decide which legal products you're allowed to see advertised - genius public health move or a slippery slope?

■ DOGE Initiative Resulted in Federal Employees Getting Paid Billions to Not Work, New Government Report Finds

The Angle: The whole point of DOGE was supposedly to cut government waste — now a new report says it may have paid federal workers billions of dollars to sit at home instead. That irony is exactly the kind of story that gets phones ringing.

- A new government report ties the DOGE initiative to federal employees being paid while not working.
- The reported cost runs into the billions of dollars.
- DOGE was originally pitched as a government efficiency and cost-cutting effort.

The Irony Alert

- An 'efficiency' initiative that may have paid people billions to do nothing — is this a punchline or a real scandal?

■ Bernie Sanders says if AI is coming for workers, it should bring a four-day workweek with it

The Angle: AI anxiety is already a kitchen-table worry for a lot of listeners, and now a major political figure is turning it into a concrete policy fight — a four-day workweek as the price of automation. It's the kind of soundbite that splits a room instantly.

- Bernie Sanders is tying the AI jobs debate directly to a four-day workweek proposal.
- The argument: if artificial intelligence is going to replace or reshape jobs, workers should share in the productivity gains, not just absorb the losses.
- It reframes AI disruption as a labor-rights issue instead of just a tech story.

The Debate Starter

- If AI actually shortens your workweek instead of ending your job, are you for it — or does that sound too good to be true?

■ Anthropic CEO warns of AI-driven botnet 'swarm' taking over the entire internet — 'In 6–12 months such a swarm could be capable of taking over the entire internet with a persistent botnet'

The Angle: The guy running one of the world's top AI labs is publicly warning his own industry's tech could spawn an unstoppable AI botnet within a year — that's the kind of 'wait, WHAT?' headline that gets people talking about how much they trust AI companies.

- The warning comes from Anthropic's CEO, the company behind the AI model Claude.
- He says within 6 to 12 months, AI could power a self-sustaining botnet 'swarm'.
- The claim: that swarm could be capable of taking over the entire internet and persisting on its own.

The Debate Starter

- If the guy building the AI is the one sounding the alarm, should that make us more scared or more skeptical?

CANADIAN NEWS (3 stories)

■■ EU opens door for Canada to become its first associate member, von der Leyen says

The Angle: This is a brand-new category of relationship nobody's used before, and it's landing right when Canada's been publicly cozying up to Europe instead of Washington - the timing alone makes this a story about who Canada's real allies are right now.

- Ursula von der Leyen, President of the European Commission, is the one floating the idea
- Canada would reportedly be the first-ever country offered this 'associate member' status with the EU

■ Canada PM Mark Carney says Trump White House gift came with strange warning

The Angle: Any Carney-Trump moment is catnip for Canadian audiences right now, and dangling a mystery gift with a "strange warning" attached is exactly the kind of tease that gets people clicking to find out what it was.

- Mark Carney says he received a gift from Trump during a White House visit.
- Carney claims the gift came attached with a "strange warning."

The Guessing Game

- What do you think Trump's gift was — and what's the warning that came with it?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Guess the Gift - 60 seconds, no Googling -> Each host throws out a guess for what Trump actually gave Carney at the White House.
- Step 2: Guess the Warning - Quick follow-up round -> Hosts guess what the "strange warning" attached to the gift might have been about.

■ 'We will rule in CANADA': Letter from Bishnoi gang to police disclosed to CBC News

The Angle: A letter obtained by CBC News shows a notorious international gang boasting it has thousands of members and more firepower than Canadian police - a wild, unnerving claim that raises real questions about organized crime's reach into Canada.

- The letter was sent directly to Canada's defence minister, the army, and police.
- The Lawrence Bishnoi gang claims to have 5,000 members operating inside Canada.
- The gang boasts it has 'more guns' than police.
- The letter's chilling line, obtained by CBC News: 'We will rule in Canada.'

■ This was the last lake of its kind in Canada. Now it's gone.

The Angle: It's a weirdly specific loss that makes climate change feel real instead of abstract — a one-of-a-kind natural feature, gone for good, and scientists are pointing straight at a warming Arctic.

- It was an epishelf lake — a rare setup where a layer of freshwater floats directly on top of saltwater
- It was the last one of its kind left in Canada
- Scientists have now confirmed it's completely gone, along with the unique ecosystem living in it
- Researchers are linking the disappearance directly to the warming Arctic climate

■ 'Julián' Review: A Mermaid-Loving Dominican American Boy Finds Acceptance in a Vibrant Animated Delight

The Angle: Cartoon Saloon keeps proving animation doesn't need a mouse in shorts to hit big — this time it's a mermaid-obsessed Dominican American kid in Brooklyn, and critics are already calling it a delight.

- Cartoon Saloon is the acclaimed Irish animation studio behind "The Secret of Kells," "Song of the Sea," and "Wolfwalkers" — all Oscar nominees.
- In 2017, they stepped outside folktales entirely with "The Breadwinner," set in Afghanistan.
- Their new film, "Julián," follows a mermaid-loving Dominican American boy finding acceptance — this time set in Brooklyn's Latino community.
- Variety's review calls it a "vibrant animated delight."

The Watercooler Take

- This studio keeps skipping the usual animation playbook — ask listeners which underrepresented story they'd love to see get the Cartoon Saloon treatment next.

ADDITIONAL CANDIDATES (no specific segment match, but scored well on source/quality - producer's call on where these fit)

■■ Garbage Trucks Now Have AI Cameras To Score Your House and Clock Code Violations

The Angle: Garbage trucks are apparently getting AI cameras that snap your house and flag code violations as they roll by — a classic 'wait, they can do THAT?' story that's tailor-made for a kicker.

- AI-equipped cameras are reportedly being mounted on garbage trucks
- The system can score your house and flag potential code violations during a routine trash pickup
- Story's blowing up on r/nottheonion for the sheer 'is this real life' factor

The Reality Check

- So garbage men are now code inspectors — are you okay with your trash truck snitching on your lawn?

Reddit r/nottheonion (Tier 1) | Score: 78/90 (45 fit + 12 source + 21 quality) -> LEAD

BREAKOUT WATCH (below the show's usual engagement bar - included on editorial judgment, not metrics; producer's call)

❤■ A 68-year-old man undergoing chemotherapy for stage 4 lung cancer spotted a stranger in cardiac arrest and immediately began CPR, helping save his life. The man’s doctor said the rapid response likely prevented permanent brain damage.

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): The irony of a stage-4 chemo patient saving a stranger's life is an unusually strong human-interest hook that tends to outperform typical feel-good posts.
The Angle: A guy going through his own stage 4 cancer fight stops to save someone else's life with CPR - that's the kind of gut-punch, restore-your-faith-in-people story that's made for a morning show.

- A 68-year-old man currently in chemotherapy for stage 4 lung cancer saw a stranger go into cardiac arrest - and jumped straight into CPR
- His quick action is being credited with helping save the stranger's life
- His doctor says the fast response likely prevented permanent brain damage

The Hero Story

- He's fighting for his own life and still stopped to save someone else's - would you know what to do if someone collapsed in front of you right now?

■ The Weeknd donated $2.2 million from his 2026 European and UK tour to the UN World Food Programme and Global Citizen, with £1 or €1 from every ticket helping provide education for children and urgent humanitarian aid.

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): The Weeknd's name recognition plus a concrete philanthropic dollar figure gives it built-in celebrity pull that generic charity stories lack.
The Angle: A global superstar quietly turning ticket stubs into meals and school supplies is the kind of celebrity-does-good story that cuts through the cynicism - it's concrete, it's massive in scale, and it gives the hosts a feel-good story with real numbers behind it.

- The Weeknd donated $2.2 million from his 2026 European and UK tour
- The money goes to the UN World Food Programme and Global Citizen
- £1 or €1 from every ticket sold is being funneled into the cause

- Funds are earmarked for children's education and urgent humanitarian aid

The Feel-Good Angle

- Would you pay a little extra on a concert ticket if you knew it was going straight to feeding kids?

■ Tiny village votes for 'independence' from UK amid asylum seeker row

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): A village 'seceding' over the asylum-seeker debate taps directly into the UK's biggest ongoing political flashpoint with an absurdist hook that r/nottheonion audiences reward.
The Angle: A British village is so fed up with a local asylum seeker housing dispute that residents literally voted to declare independence from the UK - the kind of absurd-but-real headline that's tailor-made for a kicker.

- A small UK village reportedly held a vote to declare 'independence' from the United Kingdom.
- The move comes amid a local row over asylum seeker housing in the area.
- Story is making the rounds on r/nottheonion for sounding too wild to be real - but it is.

The Debate Starter

- Could your neighborhood actually 'secede' over a local fight - and would you sign up?

■■ Cuban dance teacher ordered EU sabotage attacks from Russia

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): 'Cuban dance teacher' plus 'Russian sabotage plot' is the kind of jarring, novel juxtaposition that reliably drives r/nottheonion breakouts.
The Angle: It's the ultimate real-life spy movie plot: a Cuban dance instructor allegedly moonlighting as a Kremlin-directed saboteur across Europe. This is exactly the kind of stranger-than-fiction story that lives on r/nottheonion.

- A dance teacher based in Cuba is accused of directing sabotage attacks across the EU
- Investigators allege the orders were coming straight from Russia
- The case reads like a Cold War thriller - an everyday day job as cover for an alleged sabotage operation

The Plot Twist

- Would you ever suspect your salsa instructor of secretly working for a foreign intelligence op?

Reddit r/nottheonion (Tier 1) | Score: 78/90 (45 fit + 12 source + 21 quality) -> LEAD

■■ It's official: The U.S. has weapons in space

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Official confirmation of US weapons in space is a historic, novel geopolitical milestone that's rare enough to travel beyond the tech subreddit.
The Angle: The U.S. just confirmed what sci-fi movies have been warning us about for decades — actual weapons, in actual orbit. It's the kind of "wait, WHAT?" headline that makes for a perfect send-off tease.

The Send-Off Question

- Does anyone else feel like we just skipped a few chapters of the sci-fi movie and went straight to the ending?

Reddit r/technology (Tier 1) | Score: 78/90 (45 fit + 12 source + 21 quality) -> LEAD

■ Ed Sheeran's tour in jeopardy after opening acts all quit in support of Macklemore

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Big-name drama (Sheeran/Macklemore) with an active, escalating controversy shows real momentum, evidenced by two more posts on the same story elsewhere in the list.

The Angle: A mass walkout by opening acts is rare enough on its own, but doing it in solidarity with Macklemore turns this into a real backstage drama with a political edge — exactly the kind of messy entertainment story listeners love dissecting.

- Ed Sheeran's tour is reportedly in jeopardy after his opening acts quit
- The walkout is said to be a show of support for Macklemore
- No word yet on how Sheeran or his team plan to respond

The Debate Starter

- Do artists owe it to a headliner to stay neutral, or is walking out in solidarity fair game?
