■ Mark Carney's stand against Trump leads to Nobel Peace Prize and Time Person of the Year buzz - ctvnews.ca

The Angle: Canada's PM taking on Trump is suddenly generating serious buzz - Nobel Peace Prize chatter AND Time's Person of the Year speculation in the same breath, which is a wild combo for a sitting Canadian leader.

- Mark Carney's pushback against Trump is driving the conversation
- He's being floated as a contender for the Nobel Peace Prize
- Also generating buzz for Time's Person of the Year

The Debate Starter

- Does standing up to Trump actually make you Nobel Peace Prize material, or is this buzz getting ahead of itself?

■ Zoe Saldaña, Rosie Huntington-Whiteley and more stars shock in sheer lace at Saint Laurent fashion show - Page Six

The Angle: Paris Fashion Week just delivered its most talked-about red carpet moment of the season, with A-listers ditching coverage entirely for see-through lace — it's the kind of bold, buzzy fashion flex that gets people screenshotting and arguing in group chats.

- Zoe Saldaña and Rosie Huntington-Whiteley led a pack of A-listers at the Saint Laurent spring/summer 2027 show during Paris Fashion Week
- The sheer, lace-heavy looks left "little to the imagination" according to onlookers
- The show took place on Tuesday as part of the ongoing Paris Fashion Week circuit

The Debate Starter

■ Speed limit increased to 110 km/h on more Ontario freeways

The Angle: Nearly 9 out of 10 freeway kilometers in Ontario are now posted at 110 km/h — a province-wide shift that's got drivers debating whether it's a win for commute times or a recipe for more crashes.

- The province says almost 90% of Ontario's freeway network now carries a posted limit of 110 km/h.
- This marks an expansion of the faster limit across more stretches of highway, not just a handful of pilot routes.

The Debate Starter

- Does 110 just match how fast everyone already drives, or is this the government catching up to bad habits?

■■ Ontario ministers defend secret payout to Elon Musk's SpaceX over nixed Starlink deal - ctvnews.ca

The Angle: A Canadian government quietly cutting a check to the world's richest man after killing a tech deal is exactly the kind of taxpayer-money-meets-billionaire story that writes its own outrage - and Elon Musk's name guarantees people click.

- Ontario ministers are now publicly defending a payout tied to SpaceX
- The money stems from a scrapped Starlink internet deal with the province
- Details of the payout were reportedly kept secret before being defended publicly

The Debate Starter

The Angle: A small-town mayor spent three years dealing with a self-proclaimed 'Queen of Canada' cult overrunning his village of a few hundred people - now that they're gone, he's stepping down too. It's a bizarre, almost unbelievable local story with national appeal.

- Brad Miller is the mayor of Richmound, Sask., a tiny village that got taken over by a cult
- He says he never imagined the job would involve dealing with a cult when he signed up
- The saga lasted three years of what he calls 'sleepless nights'

The Angle: A byline named Daniel Robson got published across multiple Canadian outlets before anyone realized the writer might not actually exist — likely an AI-generated persona slipping past editors. It's a live wire into the bigger fear everyone in media has right now: can you even tell anymore?

- Several Canadian websites have pulled articles credited to a writer named Daniel Robson
- Outlets say the writer's identity cannot be verified
- The byline is suspected to be a likely AI-generated persona, not a real person

The Angle: Guillermo del Toro is drawing a hard line on AI in filmmaking as his beloved horror-fantasy classic gets a 3D re-release, feeding right into Hollywood's biggest current fight over art vs. automation.

- Guillermo del Toro says there is "absolutely no goddamn AI" used in the new 3D re-release of Pan's Labyrinth.
- He frames the project as "protecting a lineage of art," positioning the re-release as a stand against AI creeping into film restoration/remastering.
- Pan's Labyrinth originally released in 2006 and remains one of del Toro's most acclaimed, award-winning films.

The Angle: South Park has made a habit this season of torching whatever tech headline is dominating the news cycle, and now it's turning Butters loose on the AI data center boom everyone's been arguing about.

- Season 29 is still running under the show's rebrand, 'South America,' for Comedy Central.
- This week's episode logline points to a tech-world takedown centered on AI data centers.
- The show returns Wednesday night after a two-week hiatus.
- Butters is the one wading into the controversy this time around.
