TODAY'S RUNDOWN SLOTS

THE LIST (3 stories)

■ Charter boat sinks off B.C. coast—what happened

The Angle: A deadly maritime disaster unfolding near Vancouver is raising serious questions about vessel safety and operator oversight. Multiple deaths, a missing investigation, and concerns about the boat itself are dominating Canadian headlines this morning.

- Charter boat sank off Richmond, B.C. in what authorities are investigating as a major incident
- Multiple fatalities reported; the exact death toll and number of people aboard still being confirmed
- Safety concerns about the vessel itself are already emerging as part of the investigation
- Focus turning to the company that operated the boat and its regulatory compliance

The Safety Question

- Should charter boat operators face tougher inspections and regulations before taking passengers out on the water?

■■ Canada stays silent on Trump's frozen ICC judge

The Angle: A Canadian-born International Criminal Court judge is locked out of her bank accounts and credit cards after Trump sanctioned her—and Ottawa won't say if it's backing her legal fight. It's a messy collision between U.S. power, international law, and diplomatic silence.

- The judge, born in Winnipeg, serves on the International Criminal Court.
- Trump ordered sanctions against her, freezing her access to credit cards and online vendors.
- She's fighting the sanctions in U.S. court, seeking to have the order reversed.
- Canada has not publicly stated whether it will support or intervene in her legal case.

The Diplomatic Dodge

- Should Canada publicly back one of its own when the U.S. President puts the hammer down—or stay quiet and play it safe?

■■ Typhoon Bavi slams China, nearly two million evacuate

The Angle: A major typhoon is tearing across East Asia right now—nearly 2 million people in China have already cleared out ahead of landfall, and the storm's already battered Japan and Taiwan. This is an active, ongoing regional crisis affecting millions.

- Typhoon Bavi made landfall in eastern China
- Nearly two million people evacuated ahead of the storm's arrival
- The typhoon already struck parts of Japan and brushed past Taiwan

The Scale Check

- Two million people evacuating for one storm—how does that compare to what we see in North America, and what does it say about typhoon prep in that part of the world?

TRENDING TODAY

■ AI actress's new film reignites the theft-of-talent debate

The Angle: Tilly Norwood, an AI-generated actor, is landing major film deals—and it's exploding the conversation about whether AI was trained on real actors' performances without permission. It's the collision of Hollywood's future and labor rights, happening right now.

- Tilly Norwood, an AI 'actor,' is making a feature-film debut, sparking renewed backlash in Hollywood
- Critics and industry figures are questioning whether Tilly was trained on human performances without consent or attribution
- The controversy highlights a core Hollywood anxiety: whether AI systems are essentially copying real actors and replacing them

The Taking Sides Moment

- Is this the future of film, or is Hollywood watching its own talent get cloned and undercut in real time?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: The Setup - Host A kicks it off -> Lay out the basic facts: Tilly Norwood is an AI actor landing real movie roles, and people are furious because she might have been trained on actual human performances without permission.
- Step 2: The Split - Host A vs. Host B -> Host A takes the 'this is the future, deal with it' position; Host B pushes back on theft and labor displacement. Keep it punchy—two takes, no fence-sitting.
- Step 3: The Caller Test - Open the phones for 90 seconds -> Ask: 'Would you rather sit in a theater knowing the lead was a real human, or does it genuinely not matter to you?' Grab one or two quick calls.

LIFESTYLE CHAT

■ Yankees catcher finally wakes up after brutal two-month slump

The Angle: Austin Wells went from complete black hole to back-to-back home runs after GM Brian Cashman publicly called the catcher position a problem—classic case of public criticism either lighting a fire or just good timing, and Yankees fans are watching to see if it sticks.

- Austin Wells homered in back-to-back games
- Before the streak, Wells had just one home run in his previous 38 games dating back to May 1
- Brian Cashman publicly called the catcher position an 'issue' for the Yankees

The Motivation Question

- Does calling out your player publicly actually work, or was Wells due for a hot streak anyway?

Backup options:

■ Britney Spears speaks out on wild freeway moment

The Angle: Months after a DUI arrest, Britney's back in the headlines for erratic behavior on an LA freeway—and she's saying the public doesn't see the full picture. It's raising fresh questions about her mental health and what's really going on behind closed doors.

- Britney Spears defended her behavior after a freeway incident in LA
- The moment happened months after her DUI arrest

- She posted cryptic message: 'Nothing is what it seems'

The Watercooler Moment

- Is this a genuine cry for help, a comeback narrative, or something we're not understanding from the outside—and why do we keep treating celebrity mental health struggles as entertainment?

pagesix.com (Tier 2) | Score: 74/90 (45 fit + 8 source + 21 quality) -> LEAD

■ Power couple builds empire—literally—through competitive bodybuilding

The Angle: A husband-and-wife duo is flipping the script on fitness by training together, competing together, and now teaching others the lifestyle. It's the kind of partnership goal that has real staying power in the wellness world.

The Real Talk Question

- Can couples actually stay together when you're both chasing the exact same fitness goals, or does that create more friction than romance?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: The Setup - Opening minute -> One host asks the other: 'How many couples do you know who actually work out together regularly—not a one-time gym date, but like, seriously train side by side?'
- Step 2: The Angle - Middle segment -> Dig into the dynamic: Are they competing against each other, supporting each other, or some mix? Does shared ambition bond you or test you?
- Step 3: The Takeaway - Closing bit -> Flip it to listeners: 'Call in—would you want a partner who's that into the same thing you are, or is that a recipe for burnout?'

■ Trump admin subpoenas New York Times over Air Force One story

The Angle: The Trump administration is escalating its legal pressure on major news outlets, demanding that New York Times journalists testify about reporting on Air Force One—raising serious questions about press freedom and government overreach that goes way beyond one story.

- The Trump administration issued subpoenas forcing New York Times journalists to testify before a federal grand jury
- The subpoenas center on Air Force One reporting by the outlet
- A New York Times lawyer says the move should "shock the conscience" of Americans

The Press Freedom Question

- Is this a legitimate government investigation or a dangerous chill on journalism—and where's the line?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: What's the actual reporting? - Quick context -> Hosts explain what the Times originally reported about Air Force One that triggered this
- Step 2: Why subpoena the reporters? - The government's play -> Break down what the administration likely wants from testimony vs. what's already public
- Step 3: The press freedom angle - The real stakes -> Discuss: Is this investigation or intimidation? Have we seen this before with other administrations?

■ Bellingham's magic sends England to World Cup semis

The Angle: Jude Bellingham scored a stunning late goal to knock Norway out of the Women's World Cup, keeping England alive for a shot at their first final in six decades. It's a genuine underdog run that's captivating North America heading into Wednesday's semifinal.

- Jude Bellingham delivered a heroic late goal to eliminate Norway
- England advances to Wednesday's semifinal with a chance at their first final in 60 years
- The result caps an improbable tournament run for the English squad

The Underdog Question

BREAKOUT WATCH (below the show's usual engagement bar - included on editorial judgment, not metrics; producer's call)

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Public backlash forcing immediate corporate reversal is a rare legitimacy signal—shows real momentum in tech accountability discourse that audiences care about.
The Angle: Meta just launched an AI image generator and yanked it within days—the backlash was so swift and fierce that the company couldn't weather it. It's a rare win for the internet pushing back against Big Tech, and a cautionary tale about AI rollouts.

- Meta scrapped its new AI photo generation tool after public backlash
- The tool was designed to create AI-generated images but faced swift criticism from users
- The rapid reversal shows how quickly social pressure can force tech companies to retreat on AI features

The Victory Lap

- Have you ever complained about something online and actually seen the company back down—or is Meta's U-turn a total anomaly?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: The Setup - 30 seconds -> Host A: 'Meta launches shiny new AI tool.' Host B: 'Public loses their minds.' Host A: 'Three days later—gone. Completely dead.'
- Step 2: The Real Question - 60 seconds of riff -> Debate: Was the backlash justified, or did people panic about AI without giving it a real shot? What was actually wrong with it—or was it just the idea of it?
- Step 3: The Caller Moment - Take calls -> Open phones: 'Have you ever complained about a product or service and actually seen them change it? Or is this a Meta one-off?'

■ Another safety exec bolts OpenAI amid growing tensions

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Repeated safety departures at OpenAI suggest a pattern story breaking through isolated incident coverage—this is the third+ exodus signal.
The Angle: OpenAI's losing key safety voices as the company races to build faster and bigger AI systems. It's the latest in a pattern of departures that raises real questions about whether anyone's actually pumping the brakes on this thing.

- Another safety leader has departed OpenAI, continuing a pattern of high-profile exits from the company's safety and alignment teams
- The departure underscores ongoing friction between OpenAI's push for rapid AI development and concerns about safety protocols and oversight
- Safety-focused staff departures have become a recurring issue at the company as it scales its most powerful models

The Accountability Question

- If the people hired to say 'slow down' keep walking out the door, who's actually responsible when something goes wrong?

■ World Cup just broke streaming and cable viewership records

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): World Cup viewership smashing records is a clear trend spike with measurable, surprising data that typically catches late-discovering audiences. The Angle: The 2022 World Cup delivered monster numbers for both traditional TV and streaming, with Telemundo and Peacock smashing records and proving soccer's finally mainstream in North America. This is a watershed moment for the sport's reach.

- Telemundo and Peacock both hit all-time viewership records during World Cup coverage
- Spanish-language broadcast Telemundo captured significant viewership share, breaking its own benchmarks
- Peacock streaming numbers shattered previous records, signaling major shift in how North Americans consume soccer
- The tournament demonstrated soccer's explosive growth in viewership across both traditional TV and digital platforms
