TODAY'S RUNDOWN SLOTS

THE LIST (3 stories)

■■ GOP cooling on Trump's 2020 fraud claims—again

The Angle: Trump wants Republicans to relitigate 2020 election fraud allegations, but party candidates are deliberately steering clear. It's a crack in the MAGA base that matters for how Trump's influence actually plays with his own party heading into 2024.

- President Trump has been privately pushing the GOP to embrace new claims of foreign interference and election fraud from 2020
- Many Republican candidates are actively avoiding the topic, choosing to focus on issues they believe resonate more with voters
- Trump had planned a televised address to detail the allegations, signaling a major push to resurrect the 2020 narrative

The Party Fracture

- Is Trump losing his grip on the GOP message, or are Republicans just being smarter about what wins elections in 2024?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: The Setup - 30 seconds -> Host A: 'Trump wants to relitigate 2020, but his own party won't follow him there. What does that tell us?' Host B: 'Let's break it down.'
- Step 2: The Tension - 1 minute -> Host A reads the Trump angle (private push, televised address planned). Host B counters: 'But candidates are ghosting him on it.' Discuss: loyalty vs. electability in the GOP.
- Step 3: The Question - 30 seconds -> Ask audience: Are Republicans right to move on, or are they abandoning Trump's core issue? Call in.

■■ Israel says Iran moved nuclear material to secret mountain bunker

The Angle: New intelligence suggests Iran is actively concealing nuclear material at a heavily fortified underground site near facilities already targeted by U.S. airstrikes—escalating tensions over Iran's nuclear program and raising questions about what comes next.

- Israel claims Iran moved nuclear material to a buried installation dubbed 'Pickaxe Mountain' last year
- The site is located minutes from Natanz, one of three Iranian nuclear facilities hit by U.S. airstrikes in June 2025
- The underground facility is described as 'deeply buried' and highly fortified

The Stakes Question

- If Iran is actively hiding nuclear material in bunkers, what does that tell us about where this showdown with the U.S. and Israel actually goes from here?

■ Iran executes two men for aiding fleeing protesters

The Angle: Iran's regime is escalating its crackdown on dissent—now targeting not just protesters themselves, but anyone helping them escape. This marks a dangerous shift in how authoritarian governments are punishing solidarity.

- Two young men were executed on Sunday by Iran for assisting anti-regime protesters trying to flee
- The executions are part of Iran's broader brutal security crackdown against widespread protest movements
- The regime is now targeting people who offer aid and shelter to fleeing protesters, not just the protesters themselves

The Chilling Question

- Should the international community treat helping protesters escape as a crime worthy of execution—and what does that say about the regime's fear?

LIFESTYLE CHAT

■ Good News: Your Coffee Habit Might Actually Be Healthy

The Angle: The American Heart Association just weighed in on how much coffee is safe to drink daily, and it's probably more than you think. This is the kind of health news people actually care about—and want to talk about.

- American Heart Association released a new scientific statement on optimal daily coffee consumption
- Most people drink a cup or two (or three) of coffee every morning as a common daily pleasure
- The review examined health impacts of regular coffee intake and guilt levels around the habit

The Guilt Check

- How many cups are you actually drinking, and did this just give you permission to stop feeling bad about it?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Coffee Confessions - First 3 minutes -> Hosts reveal their own daily coffee counts—go around the table, no judgment, and be specific about cups/timing
- Step 2: Phone Line: Guilty or Proud? - 5-10 minutes -> Take listener calls: Are you a secret 5-cup person? Do you have a weird coffee ritual? Anyone cutting back for health reasons?
- Step 3: The Breakdown - Final 2 minutes -> Hosts discuss what the AHA actually recommends (based on source clarity) and whether the science changes anyone's behavior

■ Hunter Biden and Nick Fuentes face off in wild new doc series

The Angle: A controversial filmmaker is launching a new platform with a high-stakes interview pairing two of America's most polarizing figures—Hunter Biden and white nationalist activist Nick Fuentes—in what's being framed as a 'contentious debate.' It's the kind of cultural moment that immediately splits the room.

- Andrew Callaghan, the filmmaker behind the project, is launching a new documentary platform called C5.NOW
- The exclusive features Hunter Biden and Nick Fuentes in what's described as a 'combustible odd-couple' debate
- The interview trailer has already generated significant buzz as a 'contentious' sit-down between two figures who couldn't be more ideologically opposed

The Uncomfortable Question

- Should controversial figures with massive platforms actually sit down together, or does giving them the same stage just amplify the division?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: The Setup - First 90 seconds -> Hosts acknowledge the headline and play/describe the trailer tone—what made this pairing 'combustible'? Why did Callaghan think this was worth doing?
- Step 2: The Divide - 2-3 minutes -> Split the room: Host A argues 'sunlight is the best disinfectant—let them talk and let people decide'; Host B pushes back on platforming extremism without editorial guardrails
- Step 3: The Phone Moment - 3-5 minutes -> Open lines: 'Have you watched contentious interviews like this? Did they change your mind or just make you angrier?' Take 2-3 calls on whether this format works

BREAKOUT WATCH (below the show's usual engagement bar - included on editorial judgment, not metrics; producer's call)

■■ Gen Z socialist ousts Colorado 15-term incumbent, shakes up politics

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): A Gen Z socialist who just unseated a 15-term incumbent is a generational political story with clear ideological flashpoint potential, especially paired with immigration policy positioning.
The Angle: A young, anti-establishment candidate just knocked out a longtime Colorado congressman—and she's already making waves with bold calls to reshape who gets elected. This is the kind of primary upset that signals a real generational shift in American politics.

- A Gen Z socialist candidate defeated a 15-term Colorado incumbent in what amounts to a major primary upset
- The winner is pushing for more immigrants to run for office as part of her political platform
- The race highlights the anti-Israel position that animated her campaign against the establishment Democrat

The Generational Pivot

- Is this the shape of Democratic politics going forward, or a one-off upset in a shifting district—what do you think the party's future actually looks like?

■■ Sony sues AI music startup Udio—again, over way more songs

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Sony's second lawsuit against Udio signals this AI music IP battle is entering a critical phase with major corporate backing, positioning it as the defining legal test case for the industry.
The Angle: Sony thought it had caught Udio red-handed training on a few hundred of its songs. Then discovery revealed the real number: hundreds of thousands. Now there's a second lawsuit, and it's raising bigger questions about what AI companies can legally scrape to build their tools.

- Sony originally sued Udio alleging it trained on a few hundred Sony songs without permission

- During discovery, Sony uncovered that Udio had actually trained on hundreds of thousands more Sony songs than initially claimed
- Sony has now filed a second lawsuit while the first case is still ongoing
- The dispute centers on whether AI music companies need licensing deals or permission to use copyrighted music for training their models

The Escalation Question

- Should AI companies need permission to use your music to train their machines—or is scraping fair game for tech?

■ Trump's tariffs face legal challenge as trade war escalates

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Trump tariffs framed as 'illegal and obviously desperate' during active trade war escalation has clear political polarization hooks and real economic consequences that will drive sustained coverage.
The Angle: Trump just imposed new tariffs being called illegal by critics—and this could trigger the biggest trade showdown in years. It's the kind of economic policy collision that hits wallets and affects everything from groceries to car prices.

- Trump has announced new tariffs being characterized as 'illegal and obviously desperate' by opponents
- Legal experts are questioning the constitutional grounds for the tariff action
- The move is expected to intensify an ongoing trade conflict with potential ripple effects across North American supply chains

The Wallet Question

- Are you already feeling these tariffs in your wallet, or is this still just political noise—call in with what you're actually seeing at the store.
