■ Trump presents $10,000 check to Nick Shirley, the YouTuber behind Minnesota day care fraud furor - CBS News

The Angle: A conservative YouTuber's viral investigation into Minnesota day cares turned into an actual Oval Office moment - and now the White House is paying out $25 million to anyone who can sniff out fraud like he did.

- Nick Shirley, the YouTuber behind the viral Minnesota day care fraud videos, got a $10,000 check straight from President Trump in the Oval Office.
- His videos triggered real-world action - visits from state regulators and federal agents to the day care centers in question.
- The moment doubled as a launch event for a new $25 million fraud tip program from the White House.

- A guy with a camera and a YouTube channel ended up influencing federal fraud enforcement.

The Debate Starter

■ New Airbnb rules ban hosts from making guests wash dishes, do laundry & other checkout chores

The Angle: Anyone who's ever gotten a checkout list longer than their lease has a horror story about this - Airbnb cracking down on hosts turning guests into unpaid cleaning staff is instant relatable material for a huge chunk of the audience.

- Airbnb is rolling out new rules banning hosts from forcing guests to do checkout chores.
- The policy specifically targets hosts who make guests wash dishes and do laundry before leaving.
- Checkout-chore demands have been one of the most common guest complaints about the platform.

The Phone-In Trigger

■ Anthropic posts staggering $80.7 billion net loss in first half of 2026 as IPO approaches

The Angle: One of the hottest names in AI just posted an eye-popping loss right before trying to go public — it's the perfect gut-check on whether the AI boom is real money or a very expensive bet.

- Anthropic reported a net loss of $80.7 billion for the first half of 2026.
- The number drops right as the company reportedly moves toward a planned IPO.
- It's one of the largest losses ever posted by a tech company heading into a public offering.

The Debate Starter

■ The DoD has loaned the Dept of Homeland Secuity a military 'Heat Ray' (Active Denial System) for use at the US-Mexico Border

The Angle: A military-grade weapon built for battlefield crowd control is heading to the US-Mexico border, and that blurs a pretty bright line between the military and domestic immigration enforcement — exactly the kind of story that splits a room fast.

- The Department of Defense is loaning the Department of Homeland Security a weapon known as the Active Denial System — nicknamed the 'Heat Ray.'
- It's a non-lethal directed-energy weapon designed to make a target's skin feel like it's burning from a distance, without actually touching them.
- The plan is to deploy it at the US-Mexico border.
- It was originally developed for military crowd-control use, not domestic law enforcement.

■ Global emissions slow — but world hurtles towards 2 °C of warming

The Angle: New global data shows the rate of emissions growth is finally slowing down — but even that slowdown isn't enough to stop the planet from blowing past the 2°C warming mark scientists have warned about for years.

- Global emissions growth is slowing — a rare bit of positive momentum in the climate conversation
- Despite that slowdown, the world is still on pace to pass 2°C of warming, the long-standing danger threshold
- The story underscores the gap between 'getting better' and 'actually fixing it' on climate

■ Study identifies world's first corporate psychopath. The same playbook we see in toxic workplaces today appears in this case from 1629. He removed opponents, rewarded loyalists, created fear, manipulated followers and pursued power at any cost

The Angle: A new study claims to have ID'd history's first documented 'corporate psychopath' - and the power-grab playbook from almost 400 years ago is basically every toxic boss story you've ever heard.

- Researchers say they traced the first documented case of a corporate psychopath all the way back to 1629
- The playbook: removing opponents, rewarding loyalists, and creating fear to stay on top
- Classic manipulation tactics - manipulating followers and pursuing power at any cost - line up with what experts flag in toxic workplaces today
- The takeaway from the study: this behavior pattern isn't a modern HR problem, it's centuries old

■ Iron Maiden's Nicko McBrain rejected round of golf with Donald Trump: "Should be put in jail"

The Angle: A rock legend turning down a golf invite from a sitting world leader — with fighting words attached — is exactly the kind of celebrity-meets-politics collision that gets phones ringing.

- Nicko McBrain, longtime drummer for Iron Maiden, turned down a round of golf with Donald Trump.
- McBrain didn't hold back on why, reportedly saying Trump "should be put in jail."
- The comment is blunt enough that it's already lighting up entertainment feeds.

■ Rogers will be charging 1.6% fee for credit card bill payments starting Jan 17 to everyone outside of QC

The Angle: Starting in the new year, Rogers customers outside Quebec will get hit with a surcharge just for paying their bill with a credit card — a classic 'junk fee' moment that's guaranteed to make listeners furious and start a vent session about corporate nickel-and-diming.

- Rogers is adding a 1.6% fee on credit card bill payments
- The new charge kicks in January 17
- It applies to customers outside of Quebec — Quebec is exempt
- Switching to debit or pre-authorized payment is the likely workaround to dodge the fee

■ Toronto Crime Stoppers pauses program after CBC investigation reveals more details of data leak

The Angle: Crime Stoppers only works if tipsters trust their identity stays secret - so a data leak strikes right at the heart of the whole program, and this is breaking after a CBC investigation dug up more than first reported.

- Toronto Crime Stoppers has paused its program entirely.
- The pause follows a CBC investigation that revealed more details about a data leak tied to the service.
- The whole model runs on anonymous tips - any leak hits that trust directly.

The Trust Factor

■ Edmonton-based video game studio BioWare shutting down after more than 30 years

The Angle: BioWare is an Edmonton institution and a Canadian gaming crown jewel - this isn't some no-name studio, it's the team behind some of the most beloved RPGs ever made, and after 30+ years, EA is pulling the plug.

- BioWare is based in Edmonton and has been running for more than 30 years.
- Owner Electronic Arts (EA) is the one shutting the studio down.
- BioWare created Baldur's Gate and Dragon Age - two franchises with massive, loyal fanbases.
- This marks the end of one of Canada's most storied video game studios.

■ Irish pol calls for 'common sense' after gov-funded PSA urged grandparents to get consent before hugging grandkids

The Angle: A government-funded PSA in Ireland pushed the idea that grandparents should get consent before hugging grandkids, and it's sparked a big backlash over whether well-meaning safety messaging has gone too far into policing normal family affection.

- The PSA was government-funded and told grandparents to ask for consent before hugging their own grandkids
- Irish politician Gavin Pepper publicly slammed the campaign, calling for 'common sense'
- His exact line: 'A hug from a loving grandparent should not be presented as something strange or suspicious.'

LIFESTYLE CHAT

The Angle: This is one of those 'wait, what?' science stories that's instantly relatable — everyone's taken a hundred selfies, but researchers say your face could be quietly broadcasting clues about your health and even cancer survival odds.

- Researchers at Mass General Brigham in Boston built an AI tool that reads facial photos for health clues.
- The AI is being studied specifically in cancer patients, looking at how facial cues connect to overall survival.
- The core idea: a simple selfie could carry signals about your health and longevity that go beyond what a checkup catches.

The Debate Starter

- Would you want an app to scan your selfie and tell you your health odds — or is that information you'd rather not have?

The Angle: A 100-year-old WWII veteran who's losing his eyesight is still handcrafting wooden toy cars for children overseas - it's the kind of pure, no-catch good-news story that makes listeners stop and smile, and it's a perfect gut-check on what you do with the time you've got left.

- He's 100 years old and losing his eyesight - but he's not stopping.
- He's handmade over 1,000 wooden cars in the last decade for kids he will never meet.
- More than 100 of those came this year alone, donated to Operation Christmas Child.
- He says he hopes to keep making them for another 10 years.

■ McDonald’s has a McHero: 11 year old Tristen Ewbank used what he learned from YouTube to save a six year old choking on a chicken nugget in the play area, patting the boy’s back until it came out while his grandmother was away getting milkshakes.

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): An 11-year-old named hero saving a choking child using skills learned from YouTube is a tailor-made feel-good human-interest story with a specific protagonist, which upworthy-style communities reliably amplify.
The Angle: A kid saves another kid's life with skills he picked up from a YouTube video — it's the exact kind of pure, feel-good, restores-your-faith-in-humanity story that makes for easy, happy chat on air.

- Tristen Ewbank, just 11 years old, jumped in when a 6-year-old boy started choking on a chicken nugget
- It went down in the play area of a McDonald's, while the boy's grandmother had stepped away to get milkshakes
- Tristen says he learned the technique from YouTube and patted the boy's back until the nugget came loose
- Story's catching fire on Reddit's r/upliftingnews as a straight-up viral feel-good moment
