TODAY'S RUNDOWN SLOTS

THE LIST (2 stories)

■ Netflix's hit shows are basically carrying the whole platform

The Angle: Netflix just revealed that a tiny fraction of its catalog—less than 1 percent—is pulling in more than 20 percent of all viewing. It's a stark reminder that streaming's biggest player is increasingly dependent on blockbuster hits, not depth.

- Top 100 shows and movies accounted for over 20 percent of views from January to June
- These hit titles represent less than 1 percent of Netflix's available content library
- The concentration of viewing power in a small elite tier is not new, but Netflix's latest data release puts hard numbers to the imbalance

The Streaming Reality Check

- How many Netflix originals have you actually finished versus abandoned halfway through—are you part of the problem or the solution?

■ Trump freezes Medicaid payments to California and Minnesota

The Angle: The federal government just cut off Medicaid funding to two major states—a dramatic escalation in the Trump-vs-blue-state showdown that affects millions of people's health coverage. It's raising fast questions about what triggered it and what happens next.

- The Trump administration halted Medicaid payments to California and Minnesota
- Governor Gavin Newsom (California) and Governor Tim Walz (Minnesota) are being cited for state-level mismanagement
- The freeze affects a massive social safety-net program in two heavily populated states

The Red-vs-Blue Pressure Point

- Should the federal government use Medicaid as leverage against state leadership—or is this a dangerous political weapon that hurts regular people caught in the middle?

TRENDING TODAY

■ Nine Canadian provinces open booze borders—major trade shake-up ahead

The Angle: This is a genuinely big deal: nine provincial premiers just agreed to let wineries, breweries, and distilleries ship directly to consumers across provincial lines—dismantling decades-old interprovincial trade barriers that have kept alcohol locked in regional silos. It's a landmark move on free movement of goods that affects every drinker and producer from coast to coast.

- Nine Canadian premiers have agreed to allow wineries, distilleries, and breweries to sell directly to consumers across provincial borders

- The move breaks down longstanding interprovincial trade barriers that have historically restricted the free movement of alcohol across Canada
- Direct-to-consumer sales will now be permitted across participating provinces, reshaping how alcohol reaches consumers

The Take-Home Question

- Does this actually change where you buy your craft beer and wine, or is this just bureaucratic shuffling that won't hit shelves for months?

LIFESTYLE CHAT

■ Olivia Rodrigo's Real-Life Exes Are Her Best Songwriting Material

The Angle: The Grammy winner's biggest hits are basically her dating diary set to music—and fans have become obsessed with connecting the dots between her real-life relationships and which song each guy inspired. It's the ultimate celebrity easter egg hunt.

- Olivia Rodrigo is a Grammy winner whose song lyrics deal predominantly with relationships and heartbreak
- The artist often uses her real-life romances as inspiration for her music
- Her dating history includes Joshua Bassett and Louis Partridge, among others

The Fan Theory Game

- Which of Rodrigo's exes do you think inspired her biggest breakup anthem—and does it actually matter if the song is good either way?

Backup options:

■ Olivia Rodrigo moving on with a Wall Street guy in Brooklyn

The Angle: The 'Vampire' singer has quietly moved on from her breakup with Louis Partridge, and she's been spotted around Brooklyn with a mystery financier. Celebrity dating news is always in the cultural zeitgeist, and the Rodrigo-Partridge split was recent enough that this new pairing is generating immediate gossip and speculation.

- Olivia Rodrigo has been repeatedly spotted around Brooklyn with a mystery man following her split from British actor Louis Partridge
- The new guy is described as a Wall Street power player, suggesting a significant age or lifestyle gap from her typical Hollywood dating pattern
- Rodrigo is the artist behind the hit 'Vampire' and has been one of the most talked-about young stars in pop music

The Hot Take

- Is a Wall Street guy the opposite-end-of-the-spectrum rebound, or is Olivia actually into something totally different from the actor thing?

■ Taco Bell outbreak sparks 27 Cyclospora cases in Nebraska

The Angle: A rapid spike in food-borne illness tied to one major chain is raising fresh questions about food safety and contamination—and it's happening right now in one US metro area, which means listeners nearby need to know.

- 27 cases of Cyclospora infection identified in Douglas County, Nebraska
- Health officials pinpointed Taco Bell as the most common exposure among cases reported
- Officials described the increase as 'rapid' with cases coming in within a short window
- Douglas County Health Department is investigating the source of contamination

The Real-Talk Trigger

- Have you eaten at a Taco Bell recently—and more importantly, do you actually know what Cyclospora is and why you should care?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Quick Cyclospora 101 - 30 seconds -> Host explains what Cyclospora actually does to you (parasite, GI symptoms, incubation period) so listeners understand this isn't just a headline—it's a real health thing
- Step 2: The Taco Bell Question - 1 minute -> Co-host asks the room: 'Who here has been to that location or eaten Taco Bell this week?' Sets up listener calls without being preachy
- Step 3: Open the Lines - 3-5 minutes -> Take calls from Douglas County listeners: Have they been affected? What's their take on eating at chains right now? Does this change eating habits?

CLOSER: THE KICKER/GOODBYES

■ Gordie Howe Bridge opens—but Canada's going solo on celebration

The Angle: Canada's new U.S. bridge, named after hockey legend Gordie Howe, is opening this week, but tensions over trade threats are keeping the two countries from doing a joint ceremony. It's a telling moment when infrastructure becomes collateral damage in a political standoff.

- The Gordie Howe International Bridge will open this week connecting Canada and the U.S.
- Canada's federal infrastructure minister announced the opening Tuesday
- There will be no cross-border ceremony between the two countries
- The decision comes amid U.S. trade threats against Canada

The Cold Shoulder

- When a bridge named after a hockey legend can't even get both countries to show up together, how bad is the trade war really getting?

Backup options:

■ Jennifer Garner on paparazzi chaos: 'So hungry to get at me'

The Angle: Garner just opened up about the wild lengths tabloid photographers went to during her Hollywood peak—running red lights, driving on lawns, even endangering her kids. It's a peek into the paranoia and danger that fame used to bring before social media changed the game.

- Jennifer Garner told the "Shut Up Evan" podcast that paparazzi would follow her in dangerous ways
- If she went through a yellow light, 15 cars would run the red light behind her
- Photographers would drive up onto people's lawns, even on hillsides to get shots
- Garner said the paparazzi were 'so hungry to get at me' and knocked over her kids to get photos

The Reality Check

- Did you know paparazzi used to be THAT aggressive, or does it feel like ancient Hollywood history now?

■ Zelenskyy fires Ukraine's top general after mass protests

The Angle: Ukraine's president just made a major military leadership shake-up under serious public pressure—protesters took to the streets demanding change, and Zelenskyy responded. This is a huge moment for a country at war, and it signals real friction between the military establishment and the people fighting the war.

- Zelenskyy fired Gen. Oleksandr Syrskyi, Ukraine's commander-in-chief of armed forces, on Tuesday
- Mass protests across Kyiv and cities nationwide preceded the dismissal, with demonstrators calling for Syrskyi's removal
- A replacement commander-in-chief was immediately named, though details on who are limited in current reporting

The Pressure Point

■ Canada pulls out of bridge opening over Trump tariff threat

The Angle: A brand-new binational bridge connecting Windsor and Detroit is ready to open, but Canadian officials just announced they're boycotting the ceremony after the U.S. threatened new tariffs. It's the latest escalation in the trade war heating up between the two countries.

- Canadian officials are skipping the opening ceremony of the Gordie Howe International Bridge, which connects Windsor, Ontario to Detroit, Michigan
- The move comes after the U.S. vowed new tariffs on Canadian goods
- The bridge is a major binational infrastructure project designed to boost cross-border trade and commerce

The Standoff Question

- Is this the right move by Canada, or does boycotting your own bridge opening just hurt your own side in a trade fight?

■ France bans social media for kids under 15—no exceptions

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): France's social media ban for under-15s is the first EU-wide policy of its kind - this is a genuine policy inflection point that will resonate across parenting, tech policy, and generational culture debates.
The Angle: France just became the first major Western nation to legally block kids from TikTok, Instagram, and Snapchat until they hit 15. It's the biggest regulatory swing at Big Tech yet—and it's sparking a global conversation about whether North America should follow suit.

- France's parliament passed a sweeping ban on social media access for children under 15
- The legislation applies to major platforms including TikTok, Instagram, Snapchat, and similar apps
- France is the first major Western democracy to enact such a blanket restriction on youth social media use

The Parent Debate

- Should Canada and the US do the same, or is France overstepping—and how would you even enforce it?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN
- Step 1: The Hypothetical Ban - Right now, live -> Hosts ask each other: if North America banned TikTok for under-15s tomorrow, what actually breaks? School groups? Friend groups? Influencer careers? Get real about the friction.
- Step 2: Call the Parents & Teens - Phone lines open -> Take calls from listeners with kids in that age range—do they support a France-style ban, or is it government overreach? What would they actually do if it passed here?
- Step 3: The Tech Company Angle - Quick pivot -> How do Meta, TikTok, and Snap even verify age? Spoiler: they don't really. What's the enforcement gap that makes this law possible or impossible?
