TODAY'S RUNDOWN SLOTS

THE LIST (5 stories)

■ Ryan Gosling is finally going MCU as Ghost Rider

The Angle: After years of staying out of the superhero game, Ryan Gosling is officially joining Marvel—and he's taking on one of the darkest, most visually iconic characters in the catalog. This is the kind of A-list casting that shifts the entire conversation around where Marvel's heading next.

- Ryan Gosling will star as Ghost Rider in a new standalone Marvel movie
- The casting was announced by Marvel Studios exec Kevin Feige onstage
- Gosling has largely avoided superhero franchises until now, making this a major pivot for the actor

The Casting Call-In

- Is Ryan Gosling the right Ghost Rider, or does the internet already have someone else in mind?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: The Reveal Reaction - Quick host take -> One host picks the casting, the other plays skeptic—'Wait, Ryan Gosling in leather on a flaming motorcycle?' Lean into the visual clash or the fit.
- Step 2: The MCU Timing Question - 30 seconds -> Ask: Why NOW? Why did it take this long for Gosling to say yes to Marvel? Is he joining a bigger phase, or is this a standalone signal that Marvel's shifting strategy?
- Step 3: Phone Line - 5-10 minutes -> Open lines: Who's your dream Ghost Rider, and does Gosling fit it? Or call in your worst Marvel casting take—who should NOT have been cast?

■■ Canada's nuclear weapons option: closer than you think

The Angle: Canada has always said no to nukes, but a new analysis suggests the country could actually build them faster than most people realize—raising fresh questions about North American security and what 'never' really means in geopolitics.

- Canada has maintained a long-standing official policy against nuclear weapons development
- Recent reporting indicates the timeline for Canada to develop nuclear capability has shortened due to advances in technology and existing infrastructure
- The analysis raises questions about Canada's security posture amid changing global threats

The Real Talk Opener

- If Canada could build a bomb faster than we think, should it ever consider it—or is that a door that should stay permanently locked?

■■ U.S. and Iran hit pause on attacks—again

The Angle: After days of tit-for-tat strikes, both the U.S. and Iran are stepping back from the brink for a second straight day. It's a critical window for negotiations on a ceasefire deal that's been hanging by a thread.

- Both the U.S. and Iran confirmed they've paused attacks for a second consecutive day on Sunday
- Recent exchanges of fire have largely undermined an interim ceasefire deal already in negotiation
- The pause signals renewed effort to bring the countries back to the negotiating table

The Cautious Hope Take

- Does a two-day pause actually mean anything, or are we just watching both sides reload before the next round?

■ Two Toronto Jewish bakeries hit in apparent coordinated attacks

The Angle: Two locations of the same Jewish-owned bakery chain were damaged Sunday morning—one struck by gunfire—raising immediate questions about whether this was a coordinated hate crime. Toronto police are investigating what appears to be a deliberate pattern of targeting.

- Two separate locations of a Jewish-owned bakery chain in Toronto reported damage on Sunday morning
- One bakery location was hit by gunfire
- Toronto police are actively investigating the incidents

The Pattern Question

- If these attacks on the same Jewish business were coordinated, what does that tell us about the safety of religious communities right now?

■ French wildfires force quarter-million evacuations, threatening Bordeaux wine region

The Angle: A massive wildfire in southwest France has now displaced over 220,000 people in a single region—that's an entire city worth of evacuations—and it's creeping toward Bordeaux, one of the world's most iconic wine destinations. This is a climate-crisis story with real, immediate human stakes and global economic ripple effects.

- 55,000 people evacuated overnight Sunday alone in southwest France
- Total evacuations in the region now stand at 220,000 people
- Flames advancing toward Bordeaux, the historic wine region and home to some of the world's most valuable vineyards
- Wildfires continuing to rage across the region as crews battle the spread

The Reality Check

- How many people is 220,000 evacuations in one region? That's larger than most Canadian cities—and it happened in days. What does it mean when climate disasters start displacing entire populations?

■ Marvel's Secret Black Panther 3 Casting Finally Revealed

The Angle: Kevin Feige just dropped the behind-the-scenes tea on how David Jonsson landed the biggest superhero role in Hollywood—and it turns out Ryan Coogler had already made his choice in a clandestine meeting six months before Marvel even officially started casting. It's the kind of blockbuster casting story that has fandoms talking.

- Kevin Feige revealed that David Jonsson met with director Ryan Coogler in a secret meeting six months ago to discuss the Black Panther 3 lead role.
- Coogler identified Jonsson as his choice for the next Black Panther before Marvel had "even started a search yet."
- Jonsson, known for "The Long Walk," is taking over the role after Chadwick Boseman's death in 2020.
- Feige said the behind-the-scenes process gave him "chills" when reflecting on how the casting unfolded.

The Plot Twist

- How many of you figured out David Jonsson was the pick before Marvel made it official—and are you hyped or skeptical about the next Black Panther era?

Backup options:

■ Gracie Abrams hits No. 1 with 'Daughter From Hell' debut

The Angle: The singer-songwriter just claimed her first Billboard 200 chart-topper, proving she's moved from buzz artist to chart-moving force. It's a milestone moment in a career that's been building serious mainstream momentum.

- Gracie Abrams scored her first No. 1 on the Billboard 200 with her third album 'Daughter From Hell'
- The album opened with 124,000 equivalent album units
- She announced the project back in May alongside lead single 'Hit the Wall'
- Her previous project, 2024's 'The Secret of Us', established her as a rising force in streaming

The Watercooler Take

- Are you sleeping on Gracie Abrams, or is she genuinely the next big thing in singer-songwriter pop?

LIFESTYLE CHAT

■ Why everyone's saying the dating market is officially broken

The Angle: Dating app fatigue, ghosting, unrealistic expectations—people across North America are openly giving up on romance right now. It's hitting the culture conversation hard enough that it's trending everywhere, and there's real frustration behind the meme.

- Trend is being discussed widely across social media as a genuine cultural moment, not just a passing joke

The Watercooler Moment

■ Marvel's next Black Panther was secretly cast months ago

The Angle: Kevin Feige just revealed that director Ryan Coogler locked in David Jonsson as the new Black Panther half a year before the official announcement—and it happened in a cloak-and-dagger hotel meeting. This is the kind of behind-the-scenes Hollywood intel that shows how seriously Marvel guards its casting decisions.

- Kevin Feige revealed the casting happened six months ago
- Director Ryan Coogler held a secret hotel meeting with David Jonsson
- Coogler called Feige afterward and said 'He's the guy'
- The meeting was deliberately kept under wraps until the official announcement

The Hollywood Whisper

■ Marvel's Secret Black Panther 3 Casting Play Just Got Revealed

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Marvel/Black Panther 3 casting news with Kevin Feige's 'secret meeting' framing and emotional appeal ('I got chills') has high-stakes franchise significance that typically outperforms initial engagement metrics.
The Angle: Kevin Feige is spilling behind-the-scenes tea on how Ryan Coogler quietly locked in David Jonsson for Black Panther 3 months before the announcement—and the Marvel boss admits he got emotional about it. This is the kind of Hollywood secret-keeping that gets fans talking.

- Ryan Coogler met with David Jonsson in a secret meeting six months ago to discuss a Black Panther 3 role
- Kevin Feige revealed the hush-hush casting move and said the secrecy gave him chills
- The meeting stayed under wraps until Feige went public with the story

The Celebrity Casting Hot Take

■ Black Panther 3 officially happening—new T'Challa revealed

The Angle: Marvel's moving forward with the franchise after Chadwick Boseman's death in 2020, and they're taking it in a bold new direction: T'Challa's son will be the next Black Panther. David Jonsson steps into the suit for a December 2028 release.

- David Jonsson cast as T'Challa's son—the new Black Panther in the third film
- Ryan Coogler returns to direct; Letitia Wright reprising her role
- Film releases December 15, 2028
- Marks the franchise's continuation following Chadwick Boseman's death in 2020

The Casting Reaction

- Are you ready to see the mantle passed to the next generation, or were you hoping Marvel would go a different direction with Black Panther?

■ Marvel drops Doctor Doom bomb at Comic-Con—Avengers face their biggest threat yet

The Angle: Kevin Feige just showed Hall H the first real footage of the next massive Avengers event, and it's a game-changer: Doctor Doom's raising an army of Sentinels and somehow uniting the Avengers, Fantastic Four, and X-Men against a common enemy. This is the kind of announcement that defines the next phase of the MCU.

- Kevin Feige surprised Comic-Con attendees with exclusive Hall H footage of 'Avengers: Doomsday'
- Doctor Doom is building an army of Sentinels to take down multiple hero teams
- The story will unite the Avengers, Fantastic Four, and X-Men for the first time in the MCU

The Prediction Game

■ Scientists just found sugar floating in space—here's the twist

The Angle: Researchers discovered sugar molecules in a distant star system, and it's not just a cute headline—it's a legit clue about how life-building ingredients might have traveled to early Earth. This is the kind of science that rewires how we think about where we come from.

- Scientists detected sugar molecules in space near a distant star system
- The discovery suggests life-building ingredients could have arrived on Earth via space, not originated here alone
- The find has the science world talking about the origins of life on our planet

The Big-Picture Question

BREAKOUT WATCH (below the show's usual engagement bar - included on editorial judgment, not metrics; producer's call)

■ Berlin Pride attack suspect killed in police confrontation

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Breaking news of a major security incident at a Pride event with an active manhunt resolution has immediate news cycle momentum and strong engagement from major outlet.
The Angle: A suspect in a deadly attack at a Berlin Pride event has been shot and killed during a police standoff, marking a major development in an ongoing terrorism investigation that's grabbed international attention.

- A suspect believed responsible for a deadly attack at Berlin Pride was killed during a police confrontation after a manhunt
- The incident is being investigated as a potential Islamic extremist attack
- Police engaged the suspect in what authorities describe as a direct confrontation that ended fatally

The News Hook

- This is still developing—what we know right now is that police have ended the manhunt with force, but the full picture of who this suspect was and what motivated the attack is still coming together.

■ Netflix exec fired after trust exercise confession goes wrong

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Corporate meltdown story with lawsuit angle taps into ongoing workplace culture backlash and has inherent conflict/schadenfreude that typically drives unexpected viral spreads.
The Angle: A Netflix executive claims he was wrongfully terminated after making a personal confession during a company team-building retreat—raising the question: how much vulnerability is too much in the workplace, and can a 'trust exercise' actually backfire on you?

- A Netflix executive was fired following a confession made at a company retreat during a trust exercise
- The exec has filed suit, claiming wrongful termination over the incident
- The specific nature of the confession that led to termination has not been fully disclosed in available reporting

The Workplace Overshare

- Have you ever said something at work you immediately regretted—and what was the fallout?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN
- Step 1: The Trust Exercise Trap - Opening framing -> Hosts discuss: when companies push 'vulnerability' exercises, are they actually creating a safe space or setting employees up to fail? What's the line between team bonding and HR liability?
- Step 2: The Confession Call-In - Live engagement -> Open phone lines: listeners share their own 'office confession' stories—what did they share, what were the consequences, and would they do it again?
- Step 3: The Workplace Rules - Practical takeaway -> Hosts break down the unwritten rules: what should stay private at work retreats, and how to navigate trust exercises without torpedoing your job

■ Asian women in their 50s and 60s are walking out on marriage

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Demographic trend story about Asian women leaving marriages in midlife addresses underreported cultural shift with clear lifestyle/societal angle that resonates across audiences.
The Angle: A growing trend of mid-to-late-life divorces among Asian women is challenging traditional family expectations and sparking conversations about independence, freedom, and what happens when women finally have the financial and social power to choose themselves.

- Asian women are increasingly divorcing in their 50s and 60s, a demographic shift that's gaining attention across North America
- Women cite 'freedom' as a key reason for leaving long-term marriages
- The trend reflects changing attitudes toward traditional expectations and women's economic independence in later life

The Real Talk Trigger
