THE LIST (5 stories)

■ This Superhero Show Just Made Mom The Real Green Lantern

The Angle: HBO's 'Lanterns' is one of the buzziest new superhero dramas out right now, and a fresh Episode 3 twist — putting John's mom in charge of his Green Lantern training — is turning heads for flipping the usual mentor trope on its head.

- Jasmine Cephas-Jones guest stars in 'Lanterns' Episode 3
- The twist: John's own mom trains him to become Green Lantern, not a typical mentor figure
- Cephas-Jones calls the choice 'badass' and 'a beautiful love letter to mothers'
- Her quote: moms are 'the unsung heroes, the heroes without capes'

The Real MVP Moment

■ Sleeping in on weekends? Science says knock off the guilt

The Angle: Almost everyone secretly feels lazy for sleeping past 10 on a Saturday — this gives listeners permission to stop, with experts framing the weekend lie-in as your body cashing in a real sleep debt, not a character flaw.

- Experts quoted directly say: 'People should not feel guilty' about catching up on sleep
- The framing: weekend lie-ins are being treated as legitimate recovery from a sleep-deprived work week, not laziness
- Plays into the ongoing 'sleep debt' conversation — the idea you can meaningfully pay back lost weekday sleep

The Debate Starter

- Phone lines: are you a guilt-free-till-noon sleeper, or are you up with the alarm no matter what day it is?

■ Melinda French Gates just doubled Olivia Rodrigo's charity fund

The Angle: Two of the biggest names in philanthropy and pop culture just teamed up to push a charitable fund to $20 million - a rare feel-good crossover story that mixes celebrity power with real dollars moving.

- Melinda French Gates stepped in to match and double an existing donation
- The fund is tied to Olivia Rodrigo's "Daisy Chain Fields" initiative
- The combined total now sits at $20 million

The Feel-Good Follow-Up

- When a billionaire matches a pop star's charity fund, does it inspire more giving or just prove philanthropy's a rich person's game?

■ Ford Grew A 10-Acre Garden On Top Of A Truck Factory

The Angle: Ford took the roof of one of America's biggest industrial buildings and turned it into a living garden - it's the kind of surprising, feel-good visual that makes people rethink what a car company can look like.

- The green roof sits atop Ford's Rouge factory in Michigan, where its trucks are built.
- It spans 10 acres - making it one of the largest living roofs on any industrial building in the country.
- The garden gives birds and butterflies a habitat right on top of the factory.
- It also collects and filters rainwater, cutting runoff, while helping insulate the building.

■■ A fish farm just went off-grid with solar panels floating on the ocean

The Angle: It's a genuinely cool 'why didn't we think of this sooner' story - a remote island fish farm that can't even reach a power grid solved its own energy problem by floating solar panels on the sea, and it's a great excuse to talk about clever off-grid fixes.

- The salmon farm sits off a remote Chilean island with no connection to the mainland power grid.
- Solar panels float directly on the sea surface, paired with battery storage.
- Diesel use is down 40% to 50% since going solar.
- The setup generates roughly 350,000 kWh of electricity a year.

The Watercooler Angle

- Would you have guessed solar panels can just float on the open ocean and power a whole farm?

■ Melinda Gates just doubled Olivia Rodrigo's charity fund

The Angle: A billionaire philanthropist quietly supersizing a pop star's charity is a feel-good crossover story — old-guard mega-wealth meets Gen Z star power, and the number jumping to $20 million makes it stick.

- Melinda French Gates contributed to Olivia Rodrigo's charity initiative, pushing its total to $20 million.
- The gift doubles the fund's previous total.
- The fund is called "Daisy Chain Fields."

■ Texas Governor Just Said No More Spy Cameras

The Angle: Flock Safety's license-plate cameras have quietly spread to thousands of police departments nationwide, and now a major red-state governor is hitting the brakes — that's a real crack in the 'more surveillance equals more safety' consensus, and it cuts across the usual left-right lines.

- Texas Gov. Greg Abbott is blocking funding that would've expanded the number of Flock Safety license-plate reading cameras across the state.
- Flock cameras are already used by police departments in cities and towns all over the U.S. to automatically track vehicles.

- The pushback taps into a growing, bipartisan unease about how much everyday movement is being logged by automated surveillance networks.

■ AI Boom Means Your Next Laptop Is About to Cost You More

The Angle: For 40 straight years, computers just kept getting cheaper — now AI demand is flipping that trend upside down, and anyone shopping for a new laptop or desktop soon is about to feel it in their wallet.

- Personal computer prices had been declining steadily for 40 years — a run that's now ending.
- The AI boom is the culprit being pointed to for pushing costs back up.
- Bottom line for shoppers: getting your hands on a new device could suddenly cost you a lot more.

CANADIAN NEWS (3 stories)

■■ Google Just Renamed Lake Ontario 'Lake America'

The Angle: This one's got Canadian pride written all over it — Google apparently slapped an American label on a lake that's half-Canadian, and it's landing right after the whole 'Gulf of America' rebrand fight south of the border. Perfect setup for hosts to poke at big tech overstepping into geography it doesn't own.

- Google is reportedly labeling Lake Ontario as 'Lake America' in some of its products
- Lake Ontario borders both Ontario, Canada and New York State — it's not exclusively American water
- The move echoes the earlier controversy over Google Maps renaming the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of America for US users

The Canadian Pride Trigger

- If Google can rename a lake we share, what Canadian landmark do you defend to the death?

ON-AIR BIT BREAKDOWN

- Step 1: Read the Renaming - Kick off with the headline -> Hosts read out that Google's calling Lake Ontario 'Lake America' and react live, cold
- Step 2: Rewrite the Map - 60-second round -> Each host picks one shared or bordering landmark and gives it a new, more 'Canadian' name on the spot
- Step 3: Phone Lines Open - Audience weighs in -> Ask callers/texters what they'd rename if Google let Canada relabel one American landmark in return

■■ Google Maps Wants to Call Lake Ontario 'Lake America'

The Angle: This lands right after the whole Gulf of Mexico/Gulf of America renaming fight, so Canadians are primed to see it as another 'America renames the map' moment - easy button for border pride and cross-border ribbing.

- Google Maps is reportedly showing Lake Ontario as “Lake America” to users viewing the map from the U.S.

- It follows the same playbook as Google's earlier switch of the Gulf of Mexico to the "Gulf of America" for American users
- Story is circulating out of r/canada, with the reaction split between outrage and eye-rolling at the pattern

■ GM's Dropping $1.1 Billion on Ontario Pickup Trucks

The Angle: This is real dollars-and-jobs news for Canadian manufacturing at a moment when the auto sector's been nervous about tariffs and plants moving south — a billion-dollar bet on an Ontario plant is the kind of headline that actually lands with listeners worried about their own job security.

- General Motors is planning to build pickup trucks at a plant in Ontario
- The deal is reportedly worth $1.1 billion for Canada's auto sector
- It's being framed as a vote of confidence in Canadian manufacturing amid ongoing trade/tariff pressure on the industry

The Hometown Stakes

■ Grand Canyon flash flood — 15 people still unaccounted for

The Angle: A wall of water tore through one of North America's most-visited natural landmarks, and rescue crews are now racing to find 15 missing people — this is the kind of breaking, still-unfolding story that has everyone checking for updates.

- Flash flooding hit the Grand Canyon on Saturday, according to the U.S. National Park Service
- Dozens of people were evacuated from the area
- The flood swept large boulders, metal structures and debris into the Colorado River
- The Park Service says 15 people may be missing or unaccounted for

■ Hundreds trapped as mud buries tunnels in Nepal

The Angle: Flash flooding just buried tunnels under metres of mud with hundreds of workers believed trapped inside — a fast-moving international disaster story with a rescue outcome still unknown, plus a couple of oddball Canadian-connected stories riding along in the same rundown.

- Hundreds of workers are believed trapped in tunnels buried under metres of mud after flash flooding in Nepal
- Google Maps started labeling the U.S. as "Lake America" — and the change is showing up on several Canadian websites
- A mystery island appeared, then vanished off the coast of northern B.C.

The Weird Add-On

- Forget the tunnels for a second — a whole island just popped up and disappeared in B.C., and nobody's fully explained it yet.

■ Sask. mom crowned Mrs. Canada Universe after 26 years away

The Angle: A feel-good comeback story out of Saskatchewan - a mom steps back on a pageant stage after more than two decades and wins the whole thing, with a Sri Lanka trip on the line this fall.

- Jasmin Esquivel of Prince Albert, Sask., was crowned Mrs. Canada Universe
- She won the national title in Surrey, B.C.
- It comes after 26 years away from the stage
- She'll represent Canada at Mrs. Universe 2026 in Sri Lanka this fall
- She credits her children as her greatest support

FLEX (cap check: THE GREAT DEBATE 1/4 this month; TECH TALK 3/3 this month; Advice/Relationship Cluster 3/3 this month)

(no flex-slot candidates cleared the cap/score bar today)

BREAKOUT WATCH (below the show's usual engagement bar - included on editorial judgment, not metrics; producer's call)

■ A teacher just saved 900 kids from a flood

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Directly ties to the fast-escalating Nepal flood disaster (see rising 676-dead toll and fresh flood warnings elsewhere in this list), giving a single-hero-saves-hundreds story a live news hook and strong emotional pull.
The Angle: It's the kind of hero-teacher story that makes people tear up at their desk - a quick-thinking educator in Nepal got hundreds of students to safety before a flash flood hit, and that's exactly the feel-good jolt this segment needs.

- A headteacher in Nepal is being credited with saving roughly 900 children from a deadly flash flood
- The rescue reportedly happened at a school, with the flood striking with little warning
- Details on exactly how the evacuation played out are still trickling in from local reports

The Feel-Good Follow-Up

- Who's the one teacher, coach, or boss from your life who would've kept their head in an emergency like this?

■ Live catfish jump a truck and stall an L.A. freeway

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): A live catfish blocking an LA freeway is the kind of absurd, instantly-visual local-news oddity that reliably outperforms its subreddit and gets picked up cross-platform regardless of initial engagement.
The Angle: It's the pure, ridiculous kind of story that makes for a perfect goodbye segment - live catfish loose on pavement, drivers slamming brakes, nobody quite believing what they're looking at.

The Odd News Hook

- What's the weirdest thing you've ever seen fall off a truck and shut down traffic?

■ Is the AI boom just the dotcom bubble with better PowerPoints?

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): Lands squarely on the 'AI bubble' narrative that's dominating tech discourse right now, and the dating-app metaphor gives it a shareable framing distinct from the usual bubble-comparison pieces.
The Angle: Every company suddenly has an 'AI strategy,' but this piece argues most of it is stuck in pilot programs that never launch — sound familiar? It's the same hype cycle we saw before the dotcom crash, just with more decks and fewer results.

- The comparison: today's AI economy is being likened to a bad dating app — endless swiping through pitch decks, no real commitment.
- Companies are stuck in what's being called "pilot purgatory" — testing AI projects that never make it to full rollout.
- The piece draws a direct line to the dotcom bubble, but argues this one could be worse.
- Source: Fortune, via Reddit's r/technology, where the comparison is getting people talking.

The Debate Starter

- Is AI actually changing your job yet, or is it all just decks and demos so far?

■ Let's Talk Dolly — Because Some Icons Never Get Old

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): A standalone tribute headline for Dolly Parton, paired with a McLachlan/Rodrigo tribute performance elsewhere on this list, signals a major cultural moment around one of the most universally beloved public figures — this has outsized emotional reach beyond a niche subreddit.
The Angle: Dolly Parton is one of the rare celebrities almost nobody has a bad word for — she crosses generations, genres, and politics, which makes her an easy, feel-good topic for the whole audience.

The Love Fest

- What's the one Dolly moment — a song, a quote, a Dollywood memory — that made you a fan for life?

■ Milo Yiannopoulos just got ICE'd out of the country

■ Breakout potential (editorial judgment, below the usual engagement bar): A polarizing, high-name-recognition figure being deported after an ICE arrest is exactly the kind of controversy-driven headline that spikes engagement well past its initial numbers.
The Angle: A famously polarizing right-wing provocateur getting scooped up by ICE and shipped back to the UK is the kind of story that splits a room instantly - immigration enforcement meets a guy who's spent a decade being a lightning rod.

- Milo Yiannopoulos was arrested by ICE in the U.S.
- He was subsequently deported to the U.K.
- Yiannopoulos is a long-time controversial far-right commentator and provocateur

The Debate Starter

- Should immigration status even matter for a public figure this famous, or does fame get you zero special treatment from ICE?
